A teenager should know better than a small boy. Apparently you did not know better, Len.

Equally guilty of what certain acts, Len?

Bootlegging isn't an error? It's OK with you?

You promoted it as something that should become part of the regulations.
Yet you cannot name a single example of problems caused by the amateur radio licensing of young people under the age of 14 years

> That was a SUGGESTION I made to the FCC in 1999, > on public display at the FCC ECFS, and is a 7-year-old thing

You wanted the FCC to change the rules so that young people could not become hams. You accused the ARRL and VEs of fraud. Yet you have no evidence of that fraud. And you cannot name a single example of problems caused by the amateur radio licensing of young people under the age of 14 years.

It's just one example of what you really want for amateur radio, Len:

Extinction.

> One reason for "why" is that he has NO valid reason for > the FCC to keep the code test for any amateur radio license.

No, that's not true. I have several valid reasons, and have expressed them here and to the FCC.

What "valid reasons" did you have to suggest new regulations banning everyone under the age of 14 years from amateur radio?

I don't think you have a single one.

Really? Then I made a mistake. Sorry about that.

However, you previously told us, in http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.policy/msg/14fcce2d5becbe6f?dmode=source

"I built a simple battery powered voice transmitter back in 1948.
Single tube, very low power, worked fine for a whole block. Was 14 then. :-)"

Which was it - 14? 15? 16? 1947 or 1948? A whole block or just half a block?

You don't seem to know...

> It was a "wireless broadcaster" then

It was still bootlegging, wasn't it?

I see...everyone is to blame except you. Typical.

Do you admit that your age-limit idea wasn't backed by valid logic and sound reasoning?

Do you admit that there is no valid reason for such an age limit?

Why did you suggest it to FCC in the first place? What problem would it solve?

Len, I think you're just jealous of those of us who got amateur radio licenses before the age of 14.

I got my Novice license at the age of 13 years, Advanced at the age of 14 years and Extra at the age of 16 years. Would have had the Extra at least a year sooner except for the since-eliminated 2 year experience requirement.

Not only that, but I was on the air then as an active, licensed radio amateur. Still am, too. No bootlegging on my part - no need for it.

And I wasn't any sort of prodigy in doing so. Lots of hams have similar histories, many being licensed even younger. I think that really burns your bacon.

If you had your way, you'd put an end to all those young people getting amateur radio licenses. Why? Because you didn't - or couldn't - do the same thing?

Your license is still in its box. Seven years next month.

We certainly agree on that! Logically then, we should be yanking licenses from those over 14, I'll give up mine if everyone else will!

Talking to yourself is a sign of impending mental collapse, Slow Code.
I almost missed your post because it was killed for excessive crossposting. I only saw it because Secwet Woger quoted it when my filters were not engaged.

By the way, hams are so poorly regarded by the unwashed masses that the Admin of that sleazoid den known as NIM Busters has kicked all hams off his main board. That's probably why Secwet Woger is back again.

Woger knows CW, but the Admin ain't impressed.

Tough to do, today. In a number of states, Illinois being one, new developments are required to have HOA's with a standard, boilerplate CC&R statement provided by the Assembly for simplicity.

Pre-existing non HOA communities are forming HOA's to protect themselves from intrusion by commercial interests that cannot get traction in other HOA communities.

AND...in at least two counties, here, there are basic CC&R's in place on undeveloped land, levied by county boards, in speculation that developers may wish to move that way. Meaning, you can buy a piece of land in deep weeds, build a home with your own hands, and before you close the door, be in violation of antenna restrictions. Even though the nearest neighbor may be an hour away.

Rejecting HOA communities, today, may mean having to move a half a continent away.

You can't even homestead property on the tundra, anymore.

That's a good question. I don't believe it was in place when I bought my house eleven years ago. But I've been hearing it now for a number of years from sources within both the real estate community, and media.

Hmmm. Rumor, in Calif, is that the illegal aliens squatters have all the land!

This is total crap! There is no "radio" involved. All you have to do is be dumb enough to pay a $32.00 a year "subscription fee" to talk to people on the internet, and pretend it's "Ham Radio." There IS a sucker born every minute!

such power you credi t me with but real SC i must decline the honor the wrecking of Ham radio as you choose to define it is your own doing along with Heil Robesonn Jim old posters like Yo Doc and MD you killed the hamradio you sought to save, basicaly by trying to ram it down the throats of the rest of us in the 1990 the NoCoders would like have settled for something wht Canada has in place now, presreving a lot of what you wanted gay bashers are not welcome anywhere that is why they use fake names ike

If the CC&R is "provided by the Assembly" is that to be understood as an agency of government?

The Assembly is an agency of government, yes. The boilerplate CC&R's provided, as I've read them, are provided as a guideline. Local HOA's are free to amend them as necessary, or as desired. Or to create CC&R's of their own.

There are in a number of states, now--Maryland and Delaware among them--agencies of government which, at least in theory, oversee the operations of HOA's within the state, and are the authority to which residents may appeal cases of malfeasance, or abuse. In Maryland, this agency has relatively broad powers, and works quite effectively at bringing errant HOA's into compliance. In other states...not so.

In many states, HOA's, and their oversight agencies, are not aware of the federal exemption protecting TV and small dish antennae, Ham and CB antennae, and--at least in the opinion of a couple of FCC Commissioners--shortwave receiving antennae. It's up to the homeowner to keep current of the regs, rulings and opinions of FCC regarding antennae for radio hobbycraft. These may be the homeowner's only weapons when the issue becomes heated on the front lawn.

There is a growing number of books out there, today, regarding the gathering nightmare of HOA abuse, offering accurate information state by state, and remedies in the event of abuse. Do a websearch. There's a LOT of information out there.

They are of various ages. They range from 7 to 11. Six year olds can be "Tiger Cubs," but that program came long after Kelly was a bootlegger.

Would you hand an ignition coil over to a seven year old and tell them to have fun?

Kelly should have waited to exercise his privileges after he was licensed, not before, i.e., he entered teh ARS via the licenseless route.

Young people can become hams even if the age were 14. Fourteen is young. Twentyone is young to just about everyone licensed in the service.

Maybe by age 14, they'd realize that they need a license. Before age 14 they just grab a hot ignition coil and get on the air.

Your response goes right to the point. If the HOA is from a government entity the PRB-1 exemption should be claimed and defended prior to purchase.

There is NO requirement for a Cubscout to build a transmitter. EVER.
Transmitting is a Boyscout Radio Merit Badge and has nothing to do with Cubscouting. Kelly should be ashamed of himself for trying to pass off a stunt like that on the Scouting Organization. And where were his parents?

Absolutely. But how many really know about that exemption going in? And frankly, how many really think about this issue when the realtor is throwing around numbers?

You would. I would. There are others here who would.

But by and large, no. Home buyers, as a group do not consider this issue when making the purchase. Preferring to bitch after the fact.

Then, again, most HOA's that I've gotten to deal with have been absolutely unwilling to both answer questions or provide copies of bylaws and regulations to which they hold homeowners responsible. One former member, here--who worked at VOA for years, is an active ham and SWL--lived under the shadow of an HOA which refused to provide him a copy of the bylaws, even after a ruling in his favor by the Maryland HOA oversight agency.

You're right. Exemptions and unlawful restrictions SHOULD be claimed and defended prior to purchase.

It doesn't happen.

Andy, Welcome to the group.

A lot of people here want to talk about it and find your point of view on CW interesting reading. Just ignore Bill Turdner. Don't let his insults bother you, he likes to act like an asshole sometimes. If the ship he was on was sinking he wouldn't know about it until he was drowning. As far as your view that CW is just a hurdle to getting a license, I vote for keeping the hurdle. At least when they get licensed they have a skill then. To many of them just want to get a license and talk on a microphone. Any CB'er can to that.

Not a problem to the ARRL or FCC. ARRL is especially fond of six-year-olds. According to USA radio regs, there's NO age limit on being given free reign on the ham bands...little kiddies can go "play radio" all they want when mommy and daddy aren't around. Perfectly LEGAL for the kiddies to do that. :-)

That is Miccolis' standard "reply"...he asks a question rather than making a direct comment. :-)

It's a good ploy since it APPEARS "good manners" but really isn't. But, it AVOIDS him from taking a stand and becoming controversal (he thinks).

Ahem...here's the whole point to Miccolis' posting:

1. Morsepersons NEVER do anything wrong...even before they are federally licensed in the Archaic Radio-telegraphy Service (better known as the 'ARS').

2. No-code-test advocates ALWAYS do wrong...at any time...any place...and when they do they shall be Branded as Evil for the rest of their days!

>> > [JAMES MICCOLIS] SHOULD KNOW BETTER.

>How do we know?

We do NOT know. That is another thing Miccolis banks on:
never revealing much about himself. He won't reveal that he has children (Kelly tells us he does, but can we trust Kelly to be truthful?). He certainly doesn't reveal what he does for a living or for whom.

We DO know, from many tellings, of how poor Jimmie had to do all those bus transfers to get to the Philly FCC office in order to pass his Extra exam. [he is VERY proud of that teen-age accomplishment] We DO know of his two college degrees (as if that is supposed to be a something in a hobby radio activity) since, for a while, he couldn't resist REMINDING us of his alleged "Professionalism" doing something he won't say but being "proud" of it. [sort of like the homeless being "proud" of being free, etc., etc.]

Miccolis once again thinks he is Judge of everything and everybody. We know he was never appointed Judge and only his imagination has him anointed as a Judge.

Miccolis doesn't give a shit if collateral damage occurs.
Brian, you are into Scouting and you are a no-code-test advocate. Ergo, Scouting is "guilty" of something since non-morsemanship is a "guilty" attitude to him.

To me, illegal acts are always illegal acts.

On the other hand, if Morseman Miccolis really wants to "charge me" with some "illegal act" that happened in 1947 according to the "renowned historian" who thinks he is an LLD (but really a barracks lawyer without ever being in the service), he can quit horsing around in here and call the federal marshals to come arrest me.
He knows where I live. He thinks he "knows this neighborhood" if not the entirety of Los Angeles and all its ordinances.

However, since Jimmie not exist in 1947 nor knows about
"wireless broadcasting" gizmos on the AM BROADCAST BAND, he be just fullashit again. That's the "band" he is charging me with "bootlegging" in a terrible, evil, heinous deed that shall be forever punishable (wherever Miccolis the Morseman finds a newsgroup, that is).

Anyway, it would be a fun time IN COURT with Miccolis
the Morseman trying to uphold lawn order of the past.
It would be even more fun suing him in civil court afterwards, taking as much as me and my lawyer could get!
I wouldn't need any Johnnie Cochrane either, Jimmie's glove don' fit so nobody can convict. :-)

It's >>OKAY<< for Kelly to do ANYTHING. Kelly is a morseman. Jimmie is a morseman. They absolve each other since both are better than ordinary humans. Both their hearts and souls are PURE since they are morsemen.
They do NO evil anywhere...

If Miccolis is nothing else, he is OBSTINATE to a fault.

That whole "age" thing when 'round in here TWICE well after the comments on FCC 98-143 STOPPED. Miccolis has tried to bring it up at least twice in here but all he brought up was more of his vomit.

In Jimmieworld there is NO "statute of limitations" on anything anyone else does...at ANY time in the past.
Especially the PAST. Miccolis loves the PAST. Especially to RE-ARGUE an issue where he got no satisfaction (i.e., winning his point, trying to slaughter his opponent, etc.).

Tsk, Jimmie stepped "over the line" on ACCUSATIONS. He thinks I "want to eliminate amateur radio." I do NOT.
My advocacy is ONLY to eliminate the MORSE CODE TEST for a radio license.

But, to Miccolis' mixed-up mind, the "radio world as he knows it" would somehow "end" with the elimination of the code test. Poor fella. He will have LOST several things:

1. The ability to toss up bragging rights about code.

2. One less validity to his arrogant, superior manner.

3. The reinforcement to the conditioned thinking imposed by the ARRL during his formative teen years.

>> > One reason for "why" is that he has NO valid reason for >> > the FCC to keep the code test for any amateur radio license.

Tsk, those were INVALID for 1998, 1999, and all the years following. Those are the "maxims" promoted by the ARRL for over 70 years and they ceased to be effective by about four decades ago (give or take).

Note the difference in Miccolis descriptions of Comments:
HIS were stated as if they were full of "wisdom" yet mine were "spam." Miccolis is once again hypocritical in trying to be objective. :-)

Sounds like a plan, Brian! Heck, even Larry tRoll did that in Germany (according to him) and THAT was when Roll already had a ham license! :-)

LEGAL ways to "get on the air" in radio in 2006: CB, FRS, cellular telephones (little two-way radios really), the short-range FM Band microphones (often used with Karaoke), cordless telephones on the 2 or 5 GHz bands, wireless LANs with VoIP if data doesn't fit Miccolis lordly opinion of what "communications on radio" is...not to mention keyless auto entry fob transmitters (now by the millions in the public)...and the 160 to 190 KHz band which is still open to ALL.

Millions and millions of RADIO transmitters in the UNlicensed public's hands. Today. [they had 'em for years]
NO license required, NO test need to be passed, just key-down and go! ANY age can do it.

Jimmie NO want any of that. All gotta be SERIOUS and PROFESSIONAL in a radio HOBBY activity! Gotta be ELITE, be the champion of an archaic mode that NO other radio service bothers with now. Pass that code test or Jimmie will forever boil the no-code-testers in his own brand of flaming oil of newsgroup text! :-)

Gotta love it! STUCK in the past era of morse glory in his mind, unable to advance to the era of His life experience! He's never known anything of the present, only the PAST where he never existed.

1334. What's this?

I found the below FAQ on the web, but can't find the referenced newsgroup on any server? Looks like it could be the salvation of RRAP?

The Man in the Maze
QRV at Baboquivari Peak, AZ

Welcome to rec.radio.amateur.moderated! This is a moderated newsgroup for amateur radio operators and other people having an interest in the Amateur Radio Service, as defined by national regulations and international treaties. Following are the posting guidelines for this newsgroup.

This message includes the following sections:

1. Topics and posting policies from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Charter
2. Additional posting guidelines
2.1 Netiquette guidelines
2.2 Posting form requirements
2.3 Guidelines on signature (.sig) files
2.4 Guidelines on excessive quoting
2.5 Guidelines on pointers to outside sources
2.6 Guidelines regarding questioning someone's suitability to hold an amateur radio license
2.7 Guidelines regarding name-calling
2.8 Guidelines regarding civility
2.9 Other unacceptable topics

1. Topics and posting policies from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Charter rec.radio.amateur.moderated is an inclusive on-line community of amateur radio operators and other people having an interest in the Amateur Radio Service. Participants are invited to engage in open discussion of amateur radio issues and exchange information about participating in the hobby/service, in an atmosphere of civility, friendship, and fun.

Acceptable topics include but, are not necessarily limited to, questions and discussions about amateur radio licensing, regulations, tips on various aspects of setting up an amateur radio station, and sharing operating experiences and insights.

Unacceptable posts include, but are not limited to, buy/sell/trade posts, posts that are off-topic to the Amateur Radio Service, posts promoting or defending unlawful activities, etc. Crossposts of regular discussion articles between rec.radio.amateur.moderated and other discussion newsgroups are not permitted.

Frequently-Asked-Questions lists and other information/bulletin/announcement postings may be crossposted to rec.radio.info, rec.answers, and news.answers only with prior approval of the moderators of those newsgroups. In all such cases, an appropriate "Followup-To" header, containing only rec.radio.amateur.moderated, will be added by the moderators if one is not already provided.

Posters are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences, but to refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other newsgroup participants. Posters are expected to maintain a basic tone of civility. Prohibited uncivil discourse includes, but is not limited to, name calling.

Posts containing unsolicited advice questioning the right, worthiness, suitability and/or readiness of any individual (or members of any group) to be an amateur radio operator are unacceptable in this newsgroup. If an individual chooses to post asking for advice on when or whether to obtain an amateur radio license, or to participate in any type of lawful activity in the Amateur Radio Service, respondents should be careful to address their comments only to the original poster and not explicitly generalize to others in similar situations.

Similarly, posts that arbitrarily declare certain classes of amateur radio licenses, or certain members of national amateur radio societies (e.g., American Radio Relay League, Radio Amateurs of Canada, Radio Society of Great Britain, Wireless Institute of Australia, etc.), to be more or less worthy than others, are not permitted. Posts that politely encourage individuals to join their local amateur radio society, or to upgrade to higher classes of amateur radio license in order to enjoy greater operating privileges, are permitted, however. Posts that contain reasoned, civil, and fact-based discussion of the activities and internal politics of national amateur radio societies are also permitted.

2. Additional Posting Guidelines

2.1 Netiquette guidelines

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group.

2.2 Posting form requirements

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line
B) Crossposted articles to newsgroups not included in these Guidelines
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
E) Attachments to posts
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup

2.3 Guidelines on signature (.sig) files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a cute quip or quote, or may include information about their family, contact information, or disclaimers required by their employer, for example.

Signature files used on rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting must be no longer than 8 lines.

2.4 Guidelines on excessive quoting

Posts more than 20 lines long that also have more than 75% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine if that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to and to include just enough material to establish context. "Me too!"
posts are discouraged, and, when posted, must edit the quoted material significantly.

2.5 Guidelines on pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are strictly commercial press releases, advertisements, or other public relations campaigns, are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post. A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.amateur.moderated will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.amateur.moderated guidelines (such as a URL containing embedded name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source.

2.6 Guidelines regarding questioning someone's suitability hold an amateur radio license

Identifiable groups and individuals may not be asked/told/etc. not to obtain an amateur radio license, or to only obtain certain classes of amateur radio license. It is not permissible to make statements that a person or members of a specific group "should" not, or should not be allowed to, become an amateur radio operator.

2.7 Guidelines regarding name-calling

Nastiness addressed at a person is considered name-calling. Criticizing a person's actions is not, provided that it is done in a civil manner.

Attacks on an action which by their very nature include an accusation against the person's character are not acceptable. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and is considered name-calling. Acceptable ways of questioning the truth of a poster's statement include the more tactful "I don't think that's true," "I believe you are mistaken because..." or even simply "That's not true." "That's not true and you know it" crosses back over into name-calling, however.

2.8 Guidelines regarding civility

By charter, posters are expected to maintain a civil tone in all their postings. The guidelines on name-calling cover part of that requirement, but not all of it.

In general, posters are expected to consider the reputations of other participants, and refrain from making unnecessary accusations or assumptions about the motivations of others. A good rule of thumb is to phrase your comments as your opinion -- "I think..." "It seems to me that..." "This makes me wonder whether..." etc...

Posters are expected to make factual claims, to debate topics openly and in good faith, and to accept honest criticism, all without provocation or prevarication. At least one professional organization, the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE), has recognized that such fair dealings are necessary components of ethical conduct, and has incorporated them into its Code of Ethics:

http://www.ieee.org/portal/pages/about/whatis/code.html

Though the Amateur Radio Service is not a professional endeavor, the moderators strongly feel that the IEEE Code of Ethics is also a worthwhile set of guiding principles for participants in the rec.radio.amateur.moderated newsgroup.

No doubt you do, Morkie.

It requires a certain amount of actual application of self, not to mention adherence to those basic morality issues that a deviate such as yourself find "offensive".

That's not a disagreement with Brain or Lennie, Morkie.

That's a disagrement with the policies of the Boy Scouts of America, Inc.

None of your "privacy" was invaded or paraded, Morkie.

YOU exercised extremely poor judgement in soliciting deviant sexual favors on line with a screen name that you also used to participate in non-deviant activities with.

That makes you a deviant AND stupid.

Interesting comments, Brain...Especially since in my almost 38 years of membership and association I've never been personally aware of a single episode of inappropriate conduct between an adult member and teen-aged member. This due, in no small part, to CAP's strict rules and policies on such activities including FBI criminal background checks and fingerprinting of all it's Senior Members.

The Scouts, on the otherhand, have not had such luck. Although they have rules in place to impede such conduct, they don't have half of the safeguards in place to keep it in check. There's at least one or two media-grabbing events EVERY year...One can only imagine what nevr made it to the top....

I am sure there's been indiscretions otherwise CAP wouldn't have felt it necessary to enact such rules, however when the CPPT was initiated in the mid-80's there was much fanfare about doing so to preempt situations such as were rampant then with the Scouting program.
It's gratifying to me (and part of the reason I've stayed affiliated with the program for almost four decades) that they are so proactive in the safety and welfare of their members.

> I don't think CAP is flying with both wings tif they are letting Robesn

That would make you an even bigger idiot, Morkie...But I've never known facts to prevent you from doing that.

Of course I have no doubt that a CAP membership would be denied to you on a background check, Morkie.. Multiple abuse investigations in multiple jurisdicitons get's the FBI's attention, even if they don't get directly involved. I am sure there's a little flag next to your SSAN in some federal database that says "Not Only No But !@#$ No ! ! "

1339. Nit Picking At It's Worst. Let's Say NO To This ARRL Request

League Asks FCC to Postpone, Modify Part of 75-Meter Band Change

NEWINGTON, CT, Dec 11, 2006 -- In separate petitions today, the ARRL asked the FCC to postpone the change in allocation for 3600 to 3635 kHz while it considers a request to maintain the status quo in the segment. The so-called "omnibus" Report and Order (R&O) in WT Docket 04-140, which included moving the lower edge of the Amateur Extra 75-meter phone band to 3600 kHz, is set to go into effect Friday, December 15. The League wants the Commission to rectify the "unintended consequence" of the expansion by moving the dividing line between the narrowband and wideband segments of 80/75 meters to 3635 kHz. This would keep 3600 to 3635 kHz available to General and higher licensees for RTTY, data and CW and open to Novice and Tech Plus licensees for CW. The requested change also would maintain access to the automatically controlled digital subband, 3620 to 3635 kHz. In a Petition for Reconsideration, the League emphasized that it was not seeking reconsideration of the entire 75-meter phone band expansion.

"Rather, we ask only that the Commission restore the privileges unintentionally withdrawn from those who operate and who utilize automatically controlled narrowband digital stations between 3620 and 3635 kHz," the League said. The ARRL pointed out that while the R&O left unchanged rules permitting automatically controlled narrowband digital in that segment, it eliminated RTTY and data as permitted emissions above 3600 kHz. The ARRL also filed a Petition for Partial Stay of Effective Date of Rule pending final action on its reconsideration petition.

To justify its far greater-than-requested expansion, the League asserted, the FCC relied on the flawed logic of a handful of commenters who specifically asked for a 3600 to 4000 kHz phone band. Some commenters had made the case during the proceeding that the "CW subband" is vastly underutilized while space for SSB is at a premium.

"It affects considerably more than just those two operating modes," the ARRL said of the expansion. "Narrowband RTTY and data modes are increasingly used at 80 meters as well, and substantial numbers of RTTY and data users stand to be displaced, as well as precluded entirely, by the extent of the telephony subband expansion there."

The League contends the FCC contradicted itself by saying the rule revisions wouldn't result in any licensee losing spectrum privileges. "But operating privileges have been lost by the extent of the expansion at 80 meters," the reconsideration petition states. The expansion also significantly burdens and adversely impacts CW nets above 3600 kHz -- including emergency and public service nets -- most, if not all, of which will have to cease operating or change frequency, the League added.

Most important, however, is the loss of spectrum for automatically controlled digital modes. The ARRL petition cites the comments of several League members decrying the loss of spectrum for PACTOR, CW and RTTY. "The Winlink 2000 system was cited as a best practice by several post-Hurricane Katrina reviews, including the Congressional 'Failure of Initiative' report," remarked ARRL South Texas Section Emergency Coordinator Jerry Reimer, KK5CA.

The ARRL says shifting the band edge slightly upward would provide a "simple and equitable fix" to the obvious error in the R&O.

"This is neither a minor matter nor an academic exercise in future band planning," the ARRL concluded. "It is an urgent problem which, unless corrected, affects a substantial number of existing Amateur Radio fixed facilities and an even more substantial number of mobile facilities."

UNQUOTE

This IS a minor matter and it IS an "...academic exercise in future band planning..."

The ARRL >>>USUALLY<< goes out of it's way to get the FCC to allow "Gentleman's Agreements" and other "good Amateur practice" to establish how Amateurs divy up the spectrum.

Now it wants the FCC to micomanage spectrum allocations.

The whole re-farming episode has been in the mill for three years now, and there's no reason to gunk-up the works at H-Hour.

What's the matter, Sniveling Cunt, one more of your lies is exposed?
Are you going to pound your cheapassed computer desk?

You do lie, Marqueer, and you did claim Morse Code was easy to learn.
You can't lie your way out of it like you try to do with most things you post.

as point of fact there is a reason bto delay the FCC geting around to ending Code testing which the FCC says it will deal after this matter is done

now the FCC will likely ignore it as they should far be it from me to comment.

11 meters, if properly managed could be such a medium. However, given all the bucket mouths, bad attitudes and folks that just don't care, getting help on there is risky business these days (I know, I used to run a CERT station here in phoenix during the monsoon season, it always turned into a clusterfuck with all the yahoo's wanting to cause problems when I was trying to help out folks needing real help). with all that going on, it was a real clusterfuck. thats why I pretty much gave up on the band and moved to amateur radio. at least there, we have readiness drills, man public service events and have a proven track record (and that record is well documented).
I see no indication of such a record even existing for 11 meters and I seriously doubt anyone ever will. now, unless we get a whole new crowd down there that can behave and act in a reasonably competant and professional manner, I don't see it being anything other than the "Childrens Band".

I am "calcritizing" the "arrl"...?!?!

WTF is "calcritizing"...?!?!

I'd sue to get the money back for those three college degrees you keep lying about if I were you...

And Morkie.....

Why do you always prove me right when it comes to discussions on RRAP?

Here was a perfectly legit Amateur Radio topic and you, AS USUAL, bust it into a flamefest.

We'll now sit back and watch you spin this into yet another "I Am A Victim" rant and try to snivvel out from under the rock you've dropped on yourself.

If that was the test you took it explains a lot.... It sure explains why you are so fearful of the CBers taking over. You never passed a valid exam, so you might want to turn in that ticket and try again.
Let me know where you are and we will find you a testing session close.

We still don't have your call there SC. I'm thinking that you may not actually have a call and are just jealous of us folks that passed the tests.. (Grin)

You're the one not discussing issues, Morkie.

I put a perfectly poignant bit on here about Amateur Policy and you immediately added your "excrement" subject line.

YOU are the filth, fatboy.

YOU proved it.

You're gay.

You engage in oral sex with men who put their penis in your rectum.

There's not a single thing wrong with what I said.

If you don't like it, stop having sex with men.,

And get off of welfare.

No it;'s not.

You're gay.

You engage in oral sex with men who put their penis in your rectum.

There's not a single thing wrong with what I said.

If you don't like it, stop having sex with men.,

And get off of welfare.

1451. Nit Picking At It's Worst...Let's Just Say NO To This ARRL Request (Let's See How Long it Takes KB9RQZ To Take THIS Thread Off Topic.....)

League Asks FCC to Postpone, Modify Part of 75-Meter Band Change

NEWINGTON, CT, Dec 11, 2006 -- In separate petitions today, the ARRL asked the FCC to postpone the change in allocation for 3600 to 3635 kHz

while it considers a request to maintain the status quo in the segment.

The so-called "omnibus" Report and Order (R&O) in WT Docket 04-140, which included moving the lower edge of the Amateur Extra 75-meter phone band to 3600 kHz, is set to go into effect Friday, December 15. The League wants the Commission to rectify the "unintended consequence" of the expansion by moving the dividing line between the narrowband and wideband segments of 80/75 meters to 3635 kHz. This would keep 3600 to 3635 kHz available to General and higher licensees for RTTY, data and CW and open to Novice and Tech Plus licensees for CW. The requested change also would maintain access to the automatically controlled digital subband, 3620 to 3635 kHz. In a Petition for Reconsideration, the League emphasized that it was not seeking reconsideration of the entire 75-meter phone band expansion.

"Rather, we ask only that the Commission restore the privileges unintentionally withdrawn from those who operate and who utilize automatically controlled narrowband digital stations between 3620 and 3635 kHz," the League said. The ARRL pointed out that while the R&O left unchanged rules permitting automatically controlled narrowband digital in that segment, it eliminated RTTY and data as permitted emissions above 3600 kHz. The ARRL also filed a Petition for Partial Stay of Effective Date of Rule pending final action on its reconsideration petition.

who specifically asked for a 3600 to 4000 kHz phone band. Some commenters had made the case during the proceeding that the "CW subband" is vastly underutilized while space for SSB is at a premium.

"It affects considerably more than just those two operating modes," the ARRL said of the expansion. "Narrowband RTTY and data modes are increasingly used at 80 meters as well, and substantial numbers of RTTY and data users stand to be displaced, as well as precluded entirely, by the extent of the telephony subband expansion there."

The League contends the FCC contradicted itself by saying the rule revisions wouldn't result in any licensee losing spectrum privileges. "But operating privileges have been lost by the extent of the expansion

at 80 meters," the reconsideration petition states. The expansion also significantly burdens and adversely impacts CW nets above 3600 kHz -- including emergency and public service nets -- most, if not all, of which will have to cease operating or change frequency, the League added.

Most important, however, is the loss of spectrum for automatically controlled digital modes. The ARRL petition cites the comments of several League members decrying the loss of spectrum for PACTOR, CW and

RTTY. "The Winlink 2000 system was cited as a best practice by several post-Hurricane Katrina reviews, including the Congressional 'Failure of Initiative' report," remarked ARRL South Texas Section Emergency Coordinator Jerry Reimer, KK5CA.

The ARRL says shifting the band edge slightly upward would provide a "simple and equitable fix" to the obvious error in the R&O.

"This is neither a minor matter nor an academic exercise in future band planning," the ARRL concluded. "It is an urgent problem which, unless corrected, affects a substantial number of existing Amateur Radio fixed facilities and an even more substantial number of mobile facilities."

UNQUOTE

This IS a minor matter and it IS an "...academic exercise in future band planning..."

The ARRL >>>USUALLY<< goes out of it's way to get the FCC to allow "Gentleman's Agreements" and other "good Amateur practice" to establish

how Amateurs divy up the spectrum.

Now it wants the FCC to micomanage spectrum allocations.

>becuase fraud is a bad thing not if it's used for the greater good.

let's say you were to commit a fraud, but by commiting that fraud you would be saving the lives of innocent human beings.

would you call saving the lives of innocent human beings a bad thing? of course you wouldn't.

but you might, if you were SOOO idealistic that you would stop all fraud everywhere just because of some simplistic and antiquated "principle! (whatever that is?)"

think about it, idealism: it can KILL other innocent human beings.

THINK ABOUT IT!

Most Sincerely,

GodBuilt

No one here, with the possible exception of the mentally disturbed Roger Wiseman, has used more names for people than Leonard H. Anderson.
As to bootlegging: I've never engaged in it, Leonard.

Is the term "Mother Superior" a name, Len? Would its use be considered name calling?
How about the terms "morsemen" and "20 WPM tested gods of radio"?

You're an insulting fellow, Len. No one here manufactures more "facts" than Leonard H. Anderson. They result in a large DOUBLE STANDARD on your part.

You're an insulting fellow, Leonard. You manufacture facts. That results in a large DOUBLE STANDARD.

That's incorrect. Jim wasn't involved. The teen should have known better. He didn't.

There is no Mother Superior. There is no ruler. There is no She.
You've manufactured.

Everything you've submitted to the FCC is a "SUGGESTION", Len. You didn't issue a retraction to your submission to the FCC.

Yes, your words to the Commission were discussed seven years ago.
You've been burping up your Army radio experience of more than a half-century back, for at least ten years right here. I have little doubt that you've been discussing it elsewhere for more than half a century.

Horrid? AWFUL? I think it is more wrong-headed, Len. If Jim lets it die, I'll be happy to continue to bring it up as long as you participate in this forum.

A number of people have outlined several good and valid reasons for retention of morse code testing in amateur radio. You don't accept them. That's tought.

If (and you have to understand that this is a mighty big "if") you were to test for the Amateur Extra Class ticket this very week, you could not and would not tackle the same exam that Jim passed. It isn't offered.

Oh, come on. Mr. Schleck will soon try to establish a new, moderated news group, and we should all welcome the experiment. It will either succeed or it will fail, but it is unlikely to impact the operation of these groups. You have nothing to fear. These groups have been taken over by the morons, and the morons have a history of never going away.

Unfortunately, that describes the entire Usenet, which long ago passed its prime. Web sites are the new order of things these days, and no introduction of moderated groups to Usenet will change that fact. If you want intelligent, relevant, and moron-free conversations, you have to go to a web site, because they have the control needed to keep out the jerks.

Ask Mark, who got banned by QRZ.COM for doing exactly what he does in these news groups every day.

1471. FEDUP CALL TO ACTION - CW ADVOCACY

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.policy

From: FED UP <fedup@intergate.com>
Message-ID: <12nudvvputdjia7@corp.supernews.com>
Source record: 175805

Website: www.freeweb.com/fed_up

Thank you to those who have responded to the previous posting. We are working hard to catch up on correspondence. Apparently there are a lot more hams who are disgusted with the deterioration of the hobby than we thought. As for the emails we have received with threatening or obscene (and many, just plain stupid) comments, thank you; we plan to post the most ridiculous ones on our website when it is fully assembled.
For those of you who missed the first posting, the original CALL TO ACTION - CW ADVOCACY GROUP FORMING newsgroup posting follows. For you supercillious phonies who bellyache that this if "off topic", may we remind you that you sat by and said nothing during all of the anti-CW postings that have appeared here. Apparently those were "on topic." It matters not whether we are "granpaws" (sic) or "dinosaurs" or whatever other epithets you feel you wish to sling; one thing is sure, that you are a prime example of the death of free speech which should be a cornerstone of any communication service in a free society. Besides that, what makes you think that a "granpaw" has lost his right to expressing his opinion? Perhaps in YOUR world you would deny your own "granpaw" his right to an opinion. Perhaps in your world you need to remember that you are not getting any younger either and, sooner or later, you'll be there too. By the way, this writer is hardly a "granpaw," so your assertion doesn't stick.

CALL TO ACTION - CW ADVOCACY GROUP FORMING

This is not a warm and fuzzy "feel good" letter like much of the baloney you read in the ham radio press. If you are one of those individuals who don't mind a little sand kicked in your face as long as you have your grandchildren on your lap yakking away on your Kensu Pro Mark III, we urge you to read no further. Ugly truth follows. But, as they say, the "devil that you know is better than the one you don't."

The time has come (and it may indeed have passed) for trying to fix what ails ham radio. Ham radio has gone down "for the count." It has been sucker-punched with corrupt referees allowing much "dirty fighting" and knees to the groin. Regardless of the grand schemes of the ham radio aristocracy, the numbers are down. People aren't getting licenses anymore for many reasons but largely, because it has become a meaningless exercise. It is no longer an achievement of anything. So, they drift away. Years ago the ham population was a fraction of the size it is today and no one worried about how many hams there were. The only reason they keep dragging out this silly numbers issue is because of how many magazine subscriptions and transceiver sales it represents. THAT IS IT. Follow the money trail and you will always be led to the culprit. It has nothing whatsoever to do with any noble concern over sharing the ham radio experience with as many people as possible. It's pure greed.

It is time we CW operators grow some hair on our chests. We have sat by and watched the FCC, Newington, manufacturers (you know which ones) and "No Code International" playing freely with this once great avocation. We CW operators have bootlicked and tried to remain passive and gentlemanly while they vandalized and stole from us. We have tried so hard to abide by Paul Segal's "Amateurs" Creed" that was pounded into us that we were fearful that our speaking up would break one of his sacred commandments.

It is insulting that lobbying by the "no code" idiots and those who stand to benefit from amateur radio entrepreneurship have succeeded in weakening the licensing requirements. They continue to chisel away at the license and enable people with little investment in learning and commitment to share the same spectrum with true ham operators.

We propose a federation of real amateur radio operators who are fed up with the diminished requirements cheapening the license achievement they were once proud to have. We propose a federation of people who are disgusted with the beating that the Morse code and the integrity of the licensing examination have taken. We propose to fight back. The mountain is steep and our adversaries have been able to get better footing. We probably cannot win". It may simply be too late. But maybe we can soften how bad the impact will be when ham radio crashes to the ground. Also we can at least show those who are solely responsible for the end of the amateur radio service (which some have predicted could be within 10 years) that they personally destroyed a great communications service.

Earnest and dedicated ham operators must express outrage. Those puff-headed sycophants who we hear spewing the propaganda about "need for change" need to be challenged. Amateur radio is NOT about enabling kids to mumble nonsense on a 2-meter handi-talkie or how many secretaries in the front office in Newington got their faux- "Extra" class license. By reducing requirements and making a ham license easier to obtain DOES NOT MAKE FOR ANY SORT OF AN ACCOMPLISHMENT. Period. Amateur radio at one time was steeped in solid traditions and pride of accomplishing what it took to wear the title. Amateur radio was The Genuine Article. It was real. It had solid requirements and those who aspired to fulfill those requirements had reason to be proud of their achievement. NPRMs have repeatedly received overwhelming rejection but yet they are made into law. Why aren't they listening to the respondents? Why are the only ones they listen to the minority? The answer is this: because there is no respect for the playground weaklings.

FED UP CALLING FREQUENCIES " Bottom of "new" phone band (e.g 3600 KHZ , 7100 KHZ etc)

CW operators have just suffered a slap to the face by the diminished CW sub-bands in the so-called "Omnibus bill." We propose all CW operators register disapproval by continuing to use the old sub-bands. PLEASE NOTE: Before the angry emails start, understand that we are NOT advocating intentional interference to phone operations! We CAN co-exist. God knows we US CW operators have been putting up with Canadian phone QRM in our US CW bands for years. Shouldn't "What's good for the goose is good for the gander" prevail here? Why are the phone operators treated as such hothouse orchids? . For starters, on each amateur radio band, we propose the frequency that separates the CW and the phone sub-bands become a CW calling frequency for FEDUP hams to share thoughts and camaraderie with like individuals (For instance, 3600 KHz). Since CW operations are permitted from 3500 to 4000 khz, our operation on the bottom end of the "new" phone band is not violating anything. Phone operators, however, will be restricted from using this frequency since splatter would fall outside of their sub-band.

We propose establishment of an organization to be known as FEDERATION FOR UNCOMPROMISED PROFICIENCY (FED UP). To this end we are soliciting people willing to help write letters (FCC commissioners, congressmen, USA Today, agencies, manufacturers, magazine advertisers that use anti-CW publications...anyone influential to whom we can express our dissatisfaction as to what has been going on in this communications service). We are also soliciting hams with expertise in legal matters, media, business and marketing who would like to help us. Our goal is establishment of a professional lobbying effort to reverse the damage that has been done to the amateur radio service, the license, the quality of operators and the future of the service. The primary focus is re-establishment of proficiency to the amateur radio license and awarding levels of proficiency with privileges. Yes, this has been tried as recently as the last couple of years. Like we said earlier we are going uphill and it is not "politically correct" in today's amateur radio environment. But WE NEED TO BECOME MORE VOCAL. We need to stop being fainting goats. We need to get some FIRE IN OUR BELLIES and fight!

If you are interested in helping us put together an organization to challenge the horrific FCC rules and regulations and the idiotic policies that have been imposed on ham radio operators, we invite you to contact us. When we see what the interest level is we can better assess a potential group's structure. Obviously our first order of business will be establishment of a core mission and an executive staff to drive this effort. Please email us at fedup@intergate.com. Please be patient for our reply. We will respond to all serious inquiries personally. No doubt we will get a lot of moronic and angry emails, which will simply be deleted. Even so, it no doubt will take time to wade through the legitimate ones. And confidentiality will be maintained because we know none of you wish to put up with an e-mail inbox full of messages from goofballs.

We have been ignored because we've consistently lied down and complied. The bullies always pick on the kid who is most passive. We've been in such a rush to show how agreeable we are with all the "crap propaganda" coming out of the ham magazines, that we didn't even notice how the good things were slipping away. Our attention was diverted from their erosion of technical proficiency and abilities as a well-rounded communications operator (including knowing the Morse code) while they distracted us with the razzle-dazzle of vanity callsign giveaways and a host of scary-but-bogus threats to the welfare of ham radio.

If you've got any fight left in you we'd like to hear from you.

OH, so it's ok with you if innocent people are brutally killed as long there's never a fraud committed ever again, right?

thousands of innocent people could die as long as YOUR irvory tower idea of "principles" is rigidly adhered to all ALL times, not matter what the circumstances.

how does it feel to have the blood of thousands...no, MILLIONS of innocent people on your hands, just because you think fraud is a bad thing?

just where the FUCK is your sense of priorities, huh, pal? isn't human life more important than some idiotic and vague idea of what's right and what's wrong?

people like you sicken me.

hey, why don't we just let little babies all over the world be hacked to death by roving bands of Republicans, Dark Canadians, and people who root for the evil St. Louis Rams, and thats OK, because no one's committing fraud tonight, no-sir-ee. oh YEAH, the world's a better place now, isn't it? death rides like a cheap whore on a black horse on the winds of all the world, but that's ok, because we've eliminated fraud for ever.

for shame, sir. i hope you're able to sleep tonight.

Most Sincerely Do I Condemn Your Evil and Wicked Ways,

GodBuilt, God's Angel of Sweet Revenge!

The FCC should do what ARRL suggests, IMHO.

> The ARRL >>>USUALLY<< goes out of it's way to get the FCC to allow

> how Amateurs divy up the spectrum.

The dividing line between the various subbands-by-mode on the HF bands isn't a gentleman's agreement. It's FCC regulations.

> Now it wants the FCC to micomanage spectrum allocations.

No, that's not true.

All ARRL wants is to keep automatic RTTY and data modes legal on part of the 3500-4000 kHz band, just as it is today.

> The whole re-farming episode has been in the mill for three years > now, and there's no reason to gunk-up the works at H-Hour.

I don't think you understand the issue, Steve. It's about an obvious error in the Report and Order that will outlaw automatic RTTY and data modes from the small part of the 3500-4000 kHz band where they are legal today

Under current FCC Part 97 rules:

1) RTTY and data modes are not allowed in the "phone/image" HF subbands

2) "Automatic" RTTY and data operation in the 3500-4000 kHz band is only allowed from 3620-3635 kHz.

3) The lower edge of the "phone/image" HF subband of the 3500-4000 kHz band is at 3750 kHz.

If the current FCC Report and Order goes into effect on December 15:

1) RTTY and data modes will still not be allowed in the "phone/image"
HF
subbands

2) "Automatic" operation in the 3500-4000 kHz band will only be allowed from 3620-3635 kHz.

3) The lower edge of the "phone/image" HF subband of the 3500-4000 kHz band will be at 3600 kHz.

IOW, the "automatic" RTTY/data subband will be in the 'phone/image subband, where RTTY and data modes are not allowed!

All ARRL is asking is that the dividing line be at 3635 instead of 3600. Problem solved.

That's not micromanaging. It's fixing a simple but important error in the Report and Order.

Would you rather that automatic RTTY/data be completely banned from 3500-4000? That's what will happen if the Report and Order goes into effect as written.

The ARRL did not ask for the lower edge of the 'phone/image subband to be at 3600. Nor did they ask for 100 kHz of Extra-only 'phone/image bandspace.

It's clear that when FCC decided to make the dividing line much further down the band than ARRL requested, FCC didn't consider the impact it would have on automatic RTTY/data operations that are currently allowed on 3620-3635 kHz.

Now it's time to fix that oversight.

then you agree with me that fraud is ok if the alternative to fraud is the death of innocent people.

i'm glad you've decided to join the humaan race.

and haven't we ALL committed fraud before? you've never "enhanced" your resume, even just a little bit? of course you have! or in a job interview "enhanced" what you did at previous job so that you could improve your chances just a little bit in the interview? of course you have...we ALL have.

or, what if you had to out-and-out LIE so that it would help you to get a job, because by getting that job you could feed your family... would you lie?

you'd be a loser if you didn't lie in that situation.

so ok, fraud is bad, at times, but isn't the death of innocent people and the inability to take care of those who depend on you WORST than committing a fraud?

i rest my case.

most sincerely,

GodBuilt

i must assume you mean "nor" here.

obviously you are one of those cowardly types who is unable to take a stand on anything. it is sad that our society is made up of such individuals. most sad.

>I do agree that you are ahrassing SoB

i must assume you mean "harassing" here.

and do tell me, how is it possible to "harass" someone in a medium where the reader is the absolute master of what he or she reads?

i tell you, it is NOT be possible to harass someone, or be harassed by anotther, in a usenet newsgroup. you and everyone else who comes here has the absolute power to control everything you read. everything. you and everyone else has the choice not to read what i post...

ergo, there is no such thing as harassment in usenet. none what so ever.

now you are free to argue with me on this point, but you will lose, because you simply have no argument. at all.

therefore, there is not harassment going on here.

i am pleased to be able to teach you this important truth.

most sincerely,

GodBuilt

What's up with this nonsense? ---> http://www.500kc.com/

I don't think we need "experimental" stations to prove in the use of 500Kc/s for radio communications. Maritime mobile stations have been doing that since the days just after Titanic sailors started breathing salt water.

no you don't have to assume that you choose to assume for some reason as you chose to take denoucing something as fraud as reason to be a kook

I really do not like your style of argument. If -- you say -- "if" there were a scenario where fraud saved lives wouldn't it be a good thing?
But that is like saying "if" fraud were a good thing wouldn't you have to admit it is a good thing? "If"? "If" you weren't so stupid you would illustrate by a realistic scenario, if indeed such were possible, that fraud could save lives. What realistic scenario would that be?

Okay, not my everyday identity, but it is very much my identity. "Fraud" would be pretending to be Renay ... that would be psychopathic ... and I think we are all happier I wouldn't do that.

I've never been to a ham swap meet so I can't comment either way...

But, neither am I a "chicken bander" nor do I use CB for casual conversations with fellow Angelenos.

I would imagine the 'atmosphere' is like an HRO on a Saturday... :-)

Yes. As a late 20 WPM tested Extra once told me, "Ham is defined as the butchered meat of swine." :-)

>And those pigs, I never have seen one sing anyway.

Tsk. You should go to KitsAndParts operated by Deiter Gentzow.
Not a big mail order house but a small one, specializing in certain types of rare RF components. He is allied with the QRP group called "Flying Pigs." :-)

Them annoying pigs are the speedbumps on life's highway.

All eventually wind up as roadkill. No biggie.

That's not the purpose of the experimental license, Anymouse.

The purpose of the license is to prove that less-than-optimal loaded antenna systems can provided the desired communications.

Previous users of the band were not so restricted and had antenna farms that were hundreds of feet high and covered acres, not a few hunded square feet. Some of the antenna combinations being tried at 600 meters might be likened to trying to use a rubber duck on 20 meters.

I didn't make a mistake, Morkie.

You did.

And you keep making it everytime you repost that quote and then try to insist that it says anything other than what it says.

> If that were the case you would have to accept MINE as I imtended them > it iworks both ways steve

No one can "accept" what you say at face value for two reasons, fatboy.

First and foremost is your repeatedly stated intent to LIE whenever it SUITS you. Do you REALLY think that anyone is going to trust someone who makes such a statement?

Second is your stubborn refusal to adhere to common English composition and structure in your sentences.

YOU think you're being cool by looking like a drunk third grader with an attitude, but then you take offense when people tell you that your poor use of the language makes you difficult if not impossible to understand at times.

Unless you're willing to realize that your professed "policy" of lying and your refusal to use the same language standards that the rest of use use, then you may reasonably expect to continue to be made the butt of people's jokes and laughter, even in those rare moments when you have something "on-topic" or poignant to say.

What lies?

You have yet to put your real name and callsign at the bottom of a post since your "return"...Your buddie Brain doesn't do it either....Kinda says something about the character of a person who doesn't have the strength of conviction in his own words that he won't put his name to them.

On the "up side" is that it's almost impossible to miss your posts as opposed to any other annonymous poster because your use of the English language is so horrificly bad.

That one is, and it STILL DOES NOT SUPPORT YOUR CLAIM that I said
other men consume my excrement.

It DOES support my contention that YOU consume your OWN from the genitals of other men...Just like the original post said. And it FURTHER supports my contention that you are functionally illiterate since you can't seem to figure out why you look so stupid re-posting it with your ludicrous claims.

And since YOU continue to post, re-post, and re-re-post the quote,

If you pay attention to the attributes, Morkie, you will see that it appaears as if they are YOUR words since you are simply doing cut-and-pastes in order to keep up with the traffic.

And you CONTINUE to make it clear that your English comprehension
skills are woefully inadequate for a "man" who alledges three college

There's no "Freudian slip of the tounge" here, Morkie.

The post clearly strates that YOU know something I will NEVER know.

YOU are the one who keeps insisting it says something that it clearly does NOT say.

> in short steve feels mest MUST assert himself as alpha male over me

Nope.

I just enjoy rubbing YOUR nose in YOUR stupidity...And unfortunately you just go right on providing me with tons of opportunity to do exactly that.

> and again I rfuse to go along so he whine rants and raves about me

But you DO "go along", Morkie.

YOU keep posting more and more idiotic stuff and I just keep rubbing your nose in it.

YOU don't see the humor in it because your English deficiencies help to keep you in the dark.

Morkie, you've never made a fool out of anyone except yourself.

I've never threatened your life nor have I "black mailed" you.

Your claims that I have done so make you look even more idiotic...So help yourself...heap the silliness right up on the tomfoolery. You're only hurting yourself.

The #### up is YOUR attempt to suggest I said something I didn't say, Morkie.

I do.

The IRRESPONSIBILITY is YOURS in trying to claim that I said something other than what I said.

I never said "othermen eat my ####"

I said YOU eat your own.

Read what I wrote. It's right there in SIMPLE English.

I'm not blaming anyone for anything, other than to claim that YOU keep trying to say I said something other than what I wrote, Morkie.

I never said "other men eat my ####"...I said YOU eat your own.

Why?

There's nothing untruthful in them.

If you pay attention to the attributes, Morkie, you will see that it appears as if they are YOUR words since you are simply doing cut-and-pastes in order to keep up with the traffic.

And you CONTINUE to make it clear that your English comprehension
skills are woefully inadequate for a "man" who alledges three college degrees.

How does one "p[ay" attention, Morkie?

If you meant to redirect me to PAY attention, I have....

I notice, for example, that you continue to make gross errors in quoting and attributions.

Due, perhaps, to your being an idiot.

I make plenty of "papoints", Morkie.

One of them is that YOU don't adhere to your own rhetoric. The other is that you are a fool of monumental proportions in trying to suggest otherwise.

How does someone become an A-1 Op?

"Only the best operators can qualify for the A-1 Operator Club, amateurs who have met the highest operating standards (details on request). But you can't apply; you must be recommended independently by two amateurs who already belong to the A-1 Operator Club. Who knows? Fine-tune your operating skills, and one of these days you may be pleasantly surprised when the mailman delivers an A-1 Operator Club certificate."

from: http://www.arrl.org/awards/#a1

quote
First organized in May 1933, the ARRL A-1 Operator Club has a proud history and occupies an important place in Amateur Radio tradition.
Communications Manager Ed Handy, W1BDI, announced its formation with these words in July 1933 QST:

Are you an A-1 Operator? Excellence in stations has often been emphasized. Yet, station performance, equipment, adjustment, etc., are but part of the story. The operation of the equipment, knowledge of procedure, and general communications technique are of very great importance in determining the results of any station. To bring attention to good operating as a paramount issue, and to give it something of the importance it deserves we are this month announcing in these columns

the launching of a club for A-1 operators.

By early 1934, the roster of recognized A-1 operators had swelled to more than 400; by the end of 1938, to 1,000. Then, as now, nominations were not made lightly; through the years, recognition as an A-1 Operator has represented an unsolicited acknowledgment of one's high standing among one's peers.

Much is said about the handful of radio amateurs whose operating practices do not quite measure up. Not enough is said about those who, by contrast, lead by example - who set the standard for others to follow. Let us correct that now. Let us honor them as A-1 Operators and in so doing, honor the best in Amateur Radio. - David Sumner, K1ZZ

One can find the roster of members either by name or callsign at:

cyber vandalism

stve until you final stop your vandalizing of every post you get no real response unles I see on the first screenfull or so that it suits me to respond to esp when you post 40 plus pieces of shit

and apoloze for your lies that I have eaten your shit

and stop tryiing to claim that you are dispruting the NG as you have been for the past 8 years

and stop your desperate effort to conceal your lies about claiming that are you not responible for the state of the NG

Apparently, you mistake forbearance and tolerance for acceptance: your post appeared in rec.radio.amateur.boatanchors, so I was reluctant to reply because it _is_ off-topic there. I have cross-posted this reply to rec.radio.amateur.policy, and I've set the followup-to field. I hope you can show the readers of r.r.a.b (and the other groups you've posted to) an example of proper Usenet operating practice and Netiquette, by moving this discussion to rec.radio.amateur.policy.

If you are a grandfather, congratulations: having lived to an age where that is likely, I assume you have learned that life is not always as simple or as kind as we might have wished when we were children. It does little good, and indeed probably does harm, to bemoan a past that is gone forever, and it does nobody any good to insult those who disagree with you.

My Grandfather was never shy about expressing his opinion: he was a politician, and he knew how to do it with grace, humor, the occasional barb, and (above all) with the facts on his side.

He also knew, and taught me, the most important lesson of leadership:
when you don't know what you're talking about, you should be silent.

[remainder snipped]

IMNSHO, what "ails" ham radio is nothing more or less than the Negroponte Switch (http://www.answers.com/topic/negroponte-switch).
Since there is no longer a need for wireless communication between fixed points, and since cell phones and other modern-day wonders have obviated the need for autopatches, and since the GI's overseas can now access VoIP for calls to their loved ones, hams from "The Old School" are finding themselves feeling unwanted and unloved as the world moves to digital modes: technology changes, and it changes our hobby too.

In years past, society found use for our talents: ships at sea needed to be able to call for help, natural disasters disrupted the telephone service, remote locations found radio more effective and cheaper than running phone lines and/or undersea cables, and even aircraft had to employ Morse operators in order to stay in touch with shore stations.

I'm sorry, but times have changed: I climbed the mountain to 20 WPM, so I'm entitled to say if the view was worth the effort - it was - but I hate to break the news, OM, that you and I are obsolete.

There was a time when hams could count on help from the Pentagon at every frequency conference, because we were a trained pool of operators that could be pressed into service quickly during wartime. Military electronics, however, are now so secret and so complex that troops can't maintain them in the field: uniformed techs are reduced to doing board swaps based on "Good/No Good" indicators from portable automated testers.

In civilian life, as well, not only CW but even basic voice training is outmoded (pun intended). Satellites have obviated the need for the radio operators at sea in almost all cases, and in those situations that still call for longwave radio, SSB has obviated the need for Morse operators: we need only look at ARINC to see proof that it works effectively. As if the satellite's footprint wasn't a heavy enough burden (again, pun intended), we see that even in Antarctica, underseas or overland fiber-optics may be used to fill gaps in satellite coverage.

Let's speak frankly: there is a natural, understandable urge to want to turn back the clock. I'm human, too, so I understand your nostalgia for a time when our hard-won skills were valued and salable: I worked as a broadcast engineer to help pay for college, and even those of us not working in radio found it easy to impress our girlfriends by ordering a pizza via an autopatch, or to horrify our teachers by quoting Radio Moscow in high-school essays. There was a time when knowing the formulas and the rules - and the code - was a sort of status symbol, and, if nothing else, we can all say that we were Geeks before it was fashionable.

Times have changed: while the code was once a part of our national defense plans, it is no longer a ticket to a seat at the frequency-allocations table, nor justification for the free goodies that I enjoyed as a MARS operator, nor even a way to impress teenagers who grew up with cell phones and don't care how they work. As an Extra-class Amateur who still uses CW, I must regretfully say that if we're to remain more than a historical footnote in the history of communications, then we must all find ways to serve our communities with new techniques and new technologies.

CW remains what it always was: a fundamental mode that allows low power, inefficient antennas, and outdated electronics to be used for effective communication. As such, it is, paradoxically, still viable for ham radio even as more well-healed users trade up to the Clarke belt. In addition, CW is proof that we obtained a difficult goal by personal sacrifice, and it's OK to be proud of that achievement: if that's what brings joy to your life, by all means keep the Vibroplex and your skills polished.

The future of ham radio is, and should be, debatable. While I hope that we hams will acquire the modern equipment, skills, and training needed to serve the public in the Twenty-First century, I'm not starry-eyed as to our prospects: the "low hanging fruit" was picked years ago. The only thing I can say for certain is that divisive, sarcastic, and angry calls for a return to the "good old days" won't do anyone any good.

William

That was very well said. But, I will disagree with you on one point. YOU being obsolete? NAH - you're a very valuable member of society in that you can still "train" others to enjoy a still viable hobby or career. Though "CODE" may be dead - electronics isn't. SOMEONE has to design, manufacture, MAINTAIN those systems. machines can't do it all. AND regardless who may think electronics are getting to be so reliable - you still have to know SOMETHING about switching out a bad "module" or cable or whatever - even if you can't "repair" it board level.

I too have my CW skills but as I've said before and will again - it isn't the saviour of the world - anymore. YOU hit the nail on the head - too many other facets of radio/communications. Best to just "enjoy" while here and be glad you did.

This push to KEEP CW alive - is about as DEAD as it is going to be. NO ONE CARES ANYMORE! It will NOT bring "new" operators in and it sure in HELL won't keep the riff raff out. This isn't a "psychology" exam here.
As I pointed out before - when I was an Official Observer - I sent more notices to Generals, Advanced and EXTRAs - 13/20 WPM hams - LONG before NO CODE was even an issue. The rules of "CODE" being involved did NOT make "them" any better operators. And for what it is worth, the notices were NOT for being out of band, etc. It was their MOUTH work. Vulgar language, etc. CODE had NOTHING to do with it. CERTAINLY not with "preventing" it as the poster who "insists" code be kept alive to prevent "bad operators" from infiltrating the bands.

Get a grip on life - TIMES CHANGED. MOVE ON.

>I found the below FAQ on the web, but can't find the referenced

>RRAP?

I think it won't and for several reasons:

1. Nothing has been done/proposed to stop the incessant cross-posting of the same material to other news-groups. [see "Slow Code" as prime example lately]

2. Effective moderation can only be done by HOLDING all submitted messages/replies for review prior to public posting. [labor-intensive work for moderators,
almost a 24-hour a day task]

3. Some moderation is possible by a mechanism where all moderators can delete postings not fitting guidelines.
When the "attention-getting" posters don't see their postings in public they will be dissuaded from posting more later. Only a rare few will persist.

The above would seem impossible with the Internet as-is and the wide distribution (and rapidity of such) in the 'Web. Somewhere, someplace on the 'Web such postings would remain in public view; Google can only control
what is on Google.

4. As one who has a few years experience in moderation on a Bulletin Board System, moderation is possible ONLY with a "closed system," i.e., one where postings go no further than the BBS and moderators have a greater range of controls from the Sysop than do ordinary subscribers.
Even then it is possible to have postings remain on-line for hours, begin more arguments and name-calling before moderators can access a 'newsgroup' to do moderator actions. Excessive non-guideline activity can only be stopped with subscriber banishment from posting, again effective in a BBS but very difficult to achieve on the Internet (that carries Usenet).

5. A search for "rec.radio.amateur.moderated" items has turned up a few messages dating back to 1998. The "idea" has been kicking around for eight years with NO real action taken. This is akin to government "study groups" doing "studies" on something for a long time and producing NOTHING tangible but lots of words and paper with NO authority to correct anything. The "idea" of a moderated group seems more like wishful thinking than anything else.

The amateur radio service is, by US federal definition, NOT a professional organization. [that is the reason the activity is named as "amateur"]

Unfortunately, many amateurs have the imagination to assume they are 'professional' in their operating procedures, jargon, and (to some) their way of life, that is no more than an assumption, perhaps a fantasy of theirs. There is NO such thing as a "professional amateur," itself an oxymoron.

The IEEE "Code of Ethics" is for WORK-related activity, the professional part of IEEE members. It is NOT designed as a guideline or code of conduct for messaging. It IS a guideline for ethical (and moral for the most part) BUSINESS activity.
As a 33-year member of the IEEE I support that and follow it.
But, neither does the IEEE "Code" require me to obey it in ALL things...including my personal opinions on politics, religion, or anything else. I retain a freedom of choice permitted (in the USA) by the Constitution of the United States. That includes a freedom of speech.

It would seem obvious to me that this sudden appearance of the IEEE "Code" has come about from other newsgroupies. making unkind replies to me in here...none of which are (or have admitted to being) members of the IEEE. If there are to be "guidline references" then the Amateur's Code written by Paul Segal many decades ago should suffice. However, article two of the Amateur's Code should be re-written to apply to all or none of the amateur membership organizations, not just to patronize a particular US club.

Amateur radio can be a fun, engaging, interesting hobby. But, it remains a HOBBY, not some imaginary "professional life activity." There is nothing wrong with hobbies. Many other hobby activities exist without any pretenses at being "professional."

No one is worried that material from a moderated group would be cross-posted elsewhere. The efforts toward establishing a moderated gropare to control what is posted to the newsgroup.

That's the idea, Len, and it isn't a 24/7 task.

Nobody is worried about the material from the new group being in public view. The idea is to control the input, not the output.
There would be no more "koks on parade". There'd be no more "Marqueer" or "Not CLloyd". I'm pretty certain that anyone using terms like "Mother Superior", "Church of St. Hiram", "Colonel Klunk"or "Herr Robust" would likely disappear from the ranks of posters.

It is very, very easy to put into practice. If your post doesn't meet
the moderator's idea of a proper post, it would never be seen.

Yet there is material in this latest proposal which indicates that it is very, very new. I think you'll find that there is little of wishful thinking
in the proposal.

That's pretty much the kind of thing which leads me to believe that your presence on the moderated group would last about three rounds. You'd likely be cautioned once or twice, then you'd be gone.

Nothing precludes its use for such purposes.

Show me a man who uses ethical behavior only in his business dealings

Your freedom of speech is limited by the terms of service of your internet service provider. It is limited by any oaths you've taken to government.
It is limited by a moderated newsgroup and would be limited by an amateur radio license, if you had one. Now what?

Are you having memory problems, Len? The IEEE Code of Conduct was brought up in *response to your unkind words toward others".

How would those apply to you, Leonard? You aren't a radio amateur.

The Code was written by a staunch ARRL supporter. Either you'd like it used or you wouldn't. No one is going to rewrite it to please Leonard H. Anderson, a fellow who is not a radio amateur or an ARRL member.

The only person who regulary writes "PROFESSIONAL" here is Leonard H. Anderson.

This newsgroup deals with amateur radio. Its topic has nothing to do with "PROFESSIONAL" electronics organizations.

SLOW CODE...?!?!

Hey Your Putziness, you'd better recheck where most of those crossposts come from! They SURE as heck aren't nearly as prolific as your Feeble Five brother, Morkie of Michigan.

> 2. Effective moderation can only be done by HOLDING all

An interim approach is to allow posting until someone violates those rules.

I use that policy on my "ER-Nurses@yahoogroups.com" server and it works very well. In over 7 years of existence, I've only had to privately warn ONE poster that their conduct on the list was borderline, and that solved the issue.

No...Banishment is NOT the only recourse...Of course it is for power-hungry wannabees, such as a certain ex-radio technician non-Amateur we all know and love who'd LOVE to pretend he's the moderator of THIS forum.

Lord knows that it's needed...but for what?

There's been more than ONE attempt to discuss "policy" issues here yet it ALWAYS spins off to yet another mindless Code-No Code flamefest.

SNIP

And yet more Lennie reminding us that HE is (or was, allegedly...) a "professional".

Uhhhhh....Yes, Lennie, there IS such a thing as doing an amateur (non-compensated) act in a professional manner.

You should try it some time...You might (although I doubt it) like it.

Well well well...Guess you couldn't resist the opportunity to jump up on that soap box again, now could you...?!?!

The author SPECIFICALLY addressed the "amateur" nature of the NG in question and SPECIFICALLY refered to the IEEE ethics guidelines as just that...guidelines.

Another SNIP of More Lennie-On-Da-Soapbox

Yet another swipe at Amateur Radio without the benefit of BEING an Amateur or having ever participated in ANY aspect of Amateur Radio other than that of an alleged "contributing editor" of a magazine that went toes-up 20 years ago.

In otherwords...An UNINFORMED OPINION.

There's a blatant lie.

I posted a spot-on strictly policy issue and you immediately trashed it with your excrement posts.

In other words, you inhibited the RIGHTS of others who may have been interested in discussing that but will now probably not be able to since they won't open Morkie-related posts.

I don't blame them, but YOU interfered with THEIR ability to read and make a choice of their own.

> esp when you post 40 plus pieces of ####

The #### is yours, Morkie.

> and apoloze for your lies that I have eaten your ####

I never said you did, Morkie.

> and stop tryiing to claim that you are dispruting the NG as you have > been for the past 8 years

I've not once claimed to be disrupting the NG, Morkie.

However you HAVE been disrupting it for the very reasons I cited above.

> and stop your desperate effort to conceal your lies about claiming > that are you not responible for the state of the NG

I'm not.

You are.

Everytime YOU see a post that I have responded to and then trash it with your "excrement" subject lines or crosspostings to unrelated NGs, you ARE the cause of the disruptions.

So far, every single thread except one has your greasy thumb on it.

Nope.

Your participation in this forum is voluntary.

By it's unmoderated nature you must accept that anything you say is subject to comment or criticism by anyone who cares to respond.

If you don't like it, you have one of several options:

(1) Consider why it is your posts are being responded to in the manner they are, and survey your own comments and reactions and correct your responses accordingly.

(2) Stop responding to posters you don't like or who criticize
you. Unfortunaely for you, that leaves Brain, Toiddie and Lennie...Don't know what you'll do about that.

(3) Leave. I don't see that happening, however, since all you ahve to do with your life is play on the computer all day waiting for the state to get the checks out.

(4) Suck it up and take it like a man. But I don't see that happening either since you are a career complainer and whiner.

> > You're a willing and voluntary participant in this open forum.
> so ?

Read above. In most states it's refered to an "Mutual Voluntary Combat", or words to that effect.

> > YOU are the one doing the harrassing with you "excrement" subject

> not when you keep lying and claiming you are being misquoted

I am.

You keep insisting that I claimed we had sex or that I claim that you consume my excrement. I never said those words. You even keep reposting my very words yet are too incompetent in English to understand them.

how am i being a "kook" if i have taken an interest in teaching you some manners? silly child.

and, using logic (something foreign to you, like spelling), if i am being a "kook," as you seem to claim, are you not equally (that means just as much as myself) being a "kook?"

the answer would be yes, kook.

logic. weren't the greeks cooler than all hell?

You clearly stated that you intend to trash any post YOU don't

In otherwords, you'll do your best to "moderate" the NG to YOUR

Nope.

I never said you eat MY excrement, Morkie.

YOU claimed you prefer sex with me, not me.

That everyone INCLUDING ME presumes you to be "married" to a man is due to your lack of a marriage license and any other evidence that supports YOUR claim that, despite your previous claims of homosexuality, you have now taken a female mate.

> you post are full of your fantasies and they are sick lot lot

Not as sick as admitting to lying and being investigated for elder abuse, both of which you have.....

first of all, as i have explained before, i am unable to "hassle" you or anyone else in usenet. it's simply impossible to do so. you have complete power over what you wish to read and respond to when you are in usenet, therefore it's impossible for me to harass you in any way.

how many times do i have to explain this to you?

>by pontifacting like an asshole etc

again, i remind you, if i am being a so-called "kook" (or as it's spelled amongst the Mongolids, "kok"), you are just as equally a "kook."

silly child, it's important to make logic your friend.

most sincerely,

GodBuilt

That isn't death, that is a fate worse than death. Now you might have started there in the first place, "What if it was a choice between fraud and a fate worse than death?" Then maybe more people would see your point.

Joking aside, I see no realistic scenario where it could only be a choice between fraud and death. As usual this means I win.

That won't affect rrap(m) itself.

Not really. Much of the work can be automated so that the moderators don't need to spend much time actually moderating.

Step One: No anonymous posting.

Step Two: Limits on the length and number of postings from any individual in a given amount of time.

Step Three: If a person submits one posting that is rejected by the moderators, they are warned. Two rejections and they are not allowed to post for a given length of time. Three rejections and they are banned for a longer time. Etc.

That's a reason why a moderated group will succeed, not fail.

Doesn't matter. If all postings must be routed through the moderator system, or can be deleted by the moderators, the end result is a group without all the noise.

Eliminate the "noise" postings here and rrap becomes a low-volume group, really.

It may be difficult, but not impossible.

Moderated groups already exist. The resources available today are not as limited as those of 1998.

If the guidelines make sense, there is no reason amateurs cannot adopt them and abide by them.

Nevertheless, those guidelines can be adapted to amateur use.

The parts about how people interact with each other are applicable to an online forum such as rrap.

Maybe elsewhere - but not in rrap.

Freedom of speech does not mean that you can say whatever you want without any responsibility.

Freedom of speech does not mean that you must be allowed to speak in each and every possible venue.

Your replies are as unkind as anyone's, Len. They are much more unkind than my replies to you.

One does not have to be a member of IEEE to abide by their guidelines for interpersonal communications.

> If there

Perhaps.

Do you think you could abide by that code of behavior, Len?

> However, article two of the Amateur's Code should be re> written to apply to all or none of the amateur membership

That is not logical. If there are two groups with diametrically opposed viewpoints and goals, they cannot both be supported honetly by the same person.

> Amateur radio can be a fun, engaging, interesting hobby.

It is that, for hundreds of thousands of US radio amateurs, and many more around the world.

Amateur radio is also more than a hobby, for many radio amateurs.

> But, it remains a HOBBY, not some imaginary "professional Activities are not limited to being either hobbies or professions, Len.

There are many other categories of "life activity".

> There is nothing wrong with hobbies.
> Many other hobby activities exist without any pretenses

By definition, Amateur Radio is not "professional" but that does not mean it is 'only a hobby'.

how? how is possible to "hassle" someone in usenet? i have proven beyond a shadow a doubt that it's not possible, but you are free to prove me... allow me a moment to laugh, wrong (another impossibility).

Most maritime mobile stations (the "previous users") aren't "hundreds of feet high and covered acres"! Except for a few passenger vessels, most "antenna farms" at sea are located on the stack or aft deckhouse and are intermingled with cargo cranes, mast stays, and other deck machinery and paraphenalia. The most common 600-meter-band antennae at sea are 28-foot base loaded whips, side mounted with huge masses of steel, aluminun, and other conductive surfaces in the near-field. Only large non-cargo vessels (ie., the Titanic and QE2) have the luxury of stringing longer wire antennae.

This WD2XSH "experimental station" boon-doggle is remindful of amateur wheel-wrights slicing cross sections from logs of petrified wood out here in the desert, boring a hole somewhere near the center, and crying "Eureka, we've communicated on 600 meters... someone quick go tell the BF Goodrich!"

Robesin is not a man. He always has to bring the womenfolk into the fray. Is it any wonder I think he's creepy?

i see. and how is "it" done, the "hassling?" i don't force you to look at my posts, i have no control over what you read, you have complete control over your actions, with absolutely no inteference from me what so ever.

so in what way am i forcing you to read my post? or any posts that you don't wish to read?

do tell.

>so you cvna stop anytime you like how can i stop doing something that i'm not doing, your logic is nonexistant.

>or you can choose to go on hassling me for some imagianied sin but i'm not hassling you if you let me do "it." if i were to come over to your house and ask you if it were ok if i took your television set, and you said,

"sure, go right ahead," and then gave me your television set, how would that be stealing? it wouldn't be.

you see? you have no logic here and you don't have a clue as to what you're saying.

but i am here to help you.

most sincerely,

Of course it is - sometimes. Anyone with any sense already knows that.

> It's another tool in the tool box that can be > used when other tools are not available.

Of course - but is it such a useful and necessary tool that it must be in every radio amateur's toolbox just in case no other tool is available?

> A ham that doesn't know CW > doesn't have that tool.

True.

But a ham who doesn't have a PSK-31 setup doesn't have that tool. A ham who cannot operate (due to rig, antenna, and/or license limitiations) on every amateur band and mode doesn't have those tools either.

> Hope he has a spare mic.

How often do microphones fail at a critical moment, anyway?

Seems like a spare mike in the toolbox is a good idea.

And while we're talking of toolboxes,

Do you have every possible tool, plus all the skill and knowledge, needed to fix your rigs and antennas if they were to break at a critical moment?

I'm all for Morse Code tests and hams having lots of knowledge and skills. But the idea that all hams must pass Morse Code tests solely because there might someday arise an emergency where they had to use Morse Code is just not convincing to me at all.

Why do you insist on making a fool out of yourself, Morkie...?!?!?

The TRUTH is that YOU can't face the fact that you've been making a fool out of yourself for WEEKS now by trying to misquote me or only partially quote me and then try to represent it as something it never was.

No lies.

You're gay.

You're "married" to a male person.

You engage in personal preferences that can best be described as "sexual suicide"

Sucks to be you.

all i'm doing is responding to your posts. how is that "hassling" you? i put no gun to your head, or force you to respond, so there's no possible way i can hassle you if you choose to read and reply. i am completely innocent of doing anything. the problem lies with you, silly child.

not at all. you insult yourself, i am merely facilitating your desire to do so.

and for my kindness you get all pissy.

>and barting me

how am i "barting" you? what exactly is "barting?"

so that i don't make any assumptions on my part, could you tell me what "reocnize" means? thanks.

then don't, you shouldn't care what others think. besides, as i have taught you, there is no such thing as harassment in usenet. a person, such as yourself, can merely ignore everything i post and then they are never going to be harassed. it's JUST that simple!

it always is.

it's the Zen of Usenet, silly child.

Looks like someone found the final draft copy of the Posting Guidelines for the proposed moderated newsgroup, which I previously posted to misc.test.moderated and referred to in my previous reply to Len the other day.

A new moderated newsgroup can only reasonably address the contents of its own newsgroup. About the only leverage that moderators can exert on the posters to unmoderated newsgroups would be a "universal conduct clause" in egregious cases (no white-listing on the moderated newsgroup for such users) and prohibiting inappropriate crossposting and followups (by using moderation software to automatically screen the Newsgroups: and Followup-To: headers).

The misc.kids.moderated newsgroup (from which these Posting Guidelines were adapted, with permission), has been successful since at least 1999 through the use of:

- a team of moderators

- clear, objective, and fair editorial criteria

- use of standard, proven, multi-moderator moderation software (Secure, Team-Based Usenet Moderation Program, aka "STUMP")

- white-listing and black-listing, with fair and objective standards for adding users to both (three good articles or three bad articles would result in nomination to the white-list or the black-list, respectively)

> 2. Effective moderation can only be done by HOLDING all
> submitted messages/replies for review prior to public
> posting. [labor-intensive work for moderators,
> almost a 24-hour a day task]

It's not necessary to do this 24/7. We can guarantee reasonable message latency that will not interrupt the flow of discussion, especially if we have a team of moderators distributed across time zones. Those submitters who wish faster turnaround can meet (and continue to comply with) the reasonable requirements for white-listing.

Over time, the newsgroup's readership will quickly fall into the following three categories:

- white-listed (poster is trusted to have his articles go right through without moderator intervention, optionally with PGP signature verification)

- black-listed (poster is automatically blocked from the newsgroup, and his articles will be returned unread)

- posters not white-listed or black-listed will have their articles drop into a queue for a moderator to manually review, and make an appropriate approval or rejection decision by pressing buttons on a web interface

The last category should get smaller with time. White-listing will not prevent us from applying automated sanity checking (via Spamassassin, Procmail, and STUMP) to guard against forgeries, abuse, and newsgroup charter violations. If someone abuses our trust, they will certainly not be white-listed for very long after. STUMP also allows us to shut down threads once they have run their course, also by automatically rejecting and returning articles to the submitters. I suspect that closing threads after a reasonable amount of time will be the principal means of editorial quality control, versus rejecting specific posts.

If you're arguing that unauthenticated (i.e., non-NoCeM) cancellation is dead on the modern-day Usenet, then you would be correct. The best solution is to prevent those who will misbehave from posting to the newsgroup in the first place. Hence the white-listing/black-listing/ manual review scheme described above.

It is possible to forge articles to moderated newsgroups. However, there are several mitigations:

- PGPMoose and NoCeM, which we have set up and intend to use, can automatically detect forgeries and send authenticated ("NoCeM") cancels.

- The originating news server sites are generally very receptive to complaints about such forgeries, and will usually take swift action to prevent someone from doing it more than once. If PGPMoose checking fails, the moderators have recourse to report the offender to their ISP. This can even be done automatically.

- It is not possible to forge articles to moderated newsgroups from Google Groups.

Once someone is black-listed in STUMP, his articles will be automatically rejected and bounced back to him unread. No moderator intervention, or aggravation, required.

I've been seriously looking into the matter since at least 2002. The biggest obstacle was simply finding volunteers who were interested, had the time, had appropriate access at their ISP, and were technically savvy. The use of moderation software like STUMP (with its Web interface) mitigated the ISP access and technical savvy parts, freeing me to recruit interested people with good conduct and a good sense of what constitutes good conduct. All they need to do is read articles and push buttons. We have a moderation team, and will be passing along a Request for Discussion for the news.announce.newgroups moderator to post to news shortly after the first of the year. At that point, it will be a specific, concrete, proposal, with the members of our team identified, and our charter and objective editorial criteria clearly laid out. The readers can then read our proposal and provide meaningful feedback. No wishful thinking required.

In addition, the STUMP software is available for anyone to test now by sending submissions to:

rec-radio-amateur-moderated@panix.com

We would be happy to demonstrate approval, rejection, white-listing, black-listing, PGP signing, NoCeM cancellation, etc., to any interested individual. Currently the target newsgroup is misc.test.moderated.

That's why the Posting Guidelines state:

"Posters are not required to support the American Radio Relay League (ARRL). However, they are expected to adhere to the spirit of the other parts of the ARRL's 'Amateur's Code'"

Note the part about not having to support the ARRL.

> Amateur radio can be a fun, engaging, interesting hobby.
> But, it remains a HOBBY, not some imaginary "professional > life activity." There is nothing wrong with hobbies.
> Many other hobby activities exist without any pretenses
> at being "professional."

That's why the Posting Guidelines state:

"Though the Amateur Radio Service is not a professional endeavor, the
moderators strongly feel that the IEEE Code of Ethics is also a worthwhile set of guiding principles for participants in the
rec.radio.amateur.moderated newsgroup."

Note the words "worthwhile set of guiding principles" and within the context of the moderated newsgroup only. We're not presuming to police all of amateur radio.

While we don't expect to have significant problems with, for example,
non-compliance with part 4 of the IEEE Code:

4. to reject bribery in all its forms;

we do expect that compliance with parts 7, 8, and 9:

7. to seek, accept, and offer honest criticism of technical work, to acknowledge and correct errors, and to credit properly the contributions of others;

8. to treat fairly all persons regardless of such factors as race, religion, gender, disability, age, or national origin;

9. to avoid injuring others, their property, reputation, or employment by false or malicious action;

will weigh very heavily on our decision whether to approve a given submitter's articles, and certainly whether that submitter should be white-listed.

Do you really feel that it would seriously crimp your ability to express yourself if you were not able:

7. to avoid, refuse, and withhold honest criticism of technical work, to deny and ignore errors, and to credit improperly the contributions of others;

8. to treat unfairly all persons particularly of such factors as race, religion, gender, disability, age, or national origin;

9. to seek injuring others, their property, reputation, or employment by false or malicious action;

As someone else pointed out in this thread, situational ethics are practically no ethics at all.

Truly it is not his fault, Muster Mark.
As the late, Great j r sherman said (1:13-14), the stupid are too stupid to realise that they are stupid, therefore it is the duty of the smart to remaind the stupid that they are stupid.
So even you should be able to manage to see that it's not his fault that you are shown with every reply to be rather lazy and stupid.

Oh, no, no, no. Your sin is far from imaginary.
Stupidity is a summary capital offense.
And nobody has to lift a finger to impose sentence.
Indeed, we must routinely lift (and depress) all nine fingers in careful sequences to /warn/ you of the punishments for being stupid (which are numerous and severe).
It is not God Built's fault that you are too stupid to understand the nature of cause and effect.

The truth is that you continue your lying from 1998, "Colonel".

The truth is you're miosquoting me.

The truth is you have a poor comprehension of simple English...Even when YOU keep requoting the very words that prove you an idiot over and

I suspect that the person(s) behind this are snickering right now...

then there is the matter of the little post (supposedly by me) seeking online or in person activities of a sexual nature (It would be nice if someone could prove exactly who posted that). in any case, they are trying to use that as an "inconvenient tangental point" to drag the discussion off topic, only, it won't work. it has already been proven to be a forgery (in fact, a forgery of a forgery.....).

any way, to whom it may concern, bring it on. I am waiting.

Nope.

You've misquoted me, Morkie.

Why are you AFRAID to quote the ENTIRE sentence, Morkie...?!?!

Wait...let ME tell YOU...You FINALLY figured out that by doing so you were PROVING that you WERE lying all along and that if you kept it up, you'd look idiotic.

First you tried to quote me out of context and looked foolish doing it.

Then you started quoting the ENTIRE passage, not realising that in doing so you were providing the very evidence that you were indeed lying.

NOW you've gone back to misquoting me hoping no one wioll see the difference.

The truth is that you continue your lying from 1998, "Colonel".

The truth is you're misquoting me.

The truth is you have a poor comprehension of simple English...Even
over.....

The truth is you're a welfare abusing, miseducated, sexually deviant lying fool.

Nope.

You've misquoted me, Morkie.

Why are you AFRAID to quote the ENTIRE sentence, Morkie...?!?!

Wait...let ME tell YOU...You FINALLY figured out that by doing so
you were PROVING that you WERE lying all along and that if you kept it up, you'd look idiotic.

Oooops...Too late!

First you tried to quote me out of context and looked foolish
doing it.

Then you started quoting the ENTIRE passage, not realising that in doing so you were providing the very evidence that you were indeed lying.

NOW you've gone back to misquoting me hoping no one will see the difference.

TOO LATE AGAIN!

Nope. The truth is that you continue your lying from 1998,
"Colonel".

The truth is you're misquoting me.

Nope.

You've misquoted me, Morkie.

Why are you AFRAID to quote the ENTIRE sentence, Morkie...?!?!

Wait...let ME tell YOU...You FINALLY figured out that by doing so
you were PROVING that you WERE lying all along and that if you kept it up, you'd look idiotic.

Oooops...Too late!

First you tried to quote me out of context and looked foolish
doing it.

Then you started quoting the ENTIRE passage, not realising that in
lying.

NOW you've gone back to misquoting me hoping no one will see the difference.

I don't presume to practice medicine, long distance or otherwise,
Morkie.

And yes, Toiddie's hitting the bottle. That's what 40+ year old basement dwelling dweebs do...It's WHY they are in the basement...Mommie and Daddie couldn't stand to see Junior on the street, so they bring him BACK into the nest after having failed to raise him properly the FIRST time...

The truth is that you continue your lying from 1998, "Colonel".

The truth is you're misquoting me.

The truth is you have a poor comprehension of simple English...Even when YOU keep requoting the very words that prove you an idiot over and over.....

The truth is you're a welfare abusing, miseducated, sexually deviant lying fool.

See...Not a lie in it.

Nope.

You've misquoted me, Morkie.

Why are you AFRAID to quote the ENTIRE sentence, Morkie...?!?!

Wait...let ME tell YOU...You FINALLY figured out that by doing so
you were PROVING that you WERE lying all along and that if you kept it up, you'd look idiotic.

Oooops...Too late!

First you tried to quote me out of context and looked foolish
doing it.

Then you started quoting the ENTIRE passage, not realising that in doing so you were providing the very evidence that you were indeed lying.

NOW you've gone back to misquoting me hoping no one will see the difference.

TOO LATE AGAIN!

Since when are YOU concerned about 'on topic"...?!?!

YOU have trashed EVERY "on topic" post this week under the guise of giving me grief.

Seems to me that "on topic" means nothing to you.

It might...if you actually understood the words!

You aren't paying attention, John CB. The A-1 Operator Club isn't something you pursue.
It either comes to you or it doesn't. There are A-1 Ops who have jobs and who do volunteer work.

wow, that was childishly incoherent.

how is it possible for Mr. Hammes to harass you? i really don't understand that.

most sincerely,

it would appear, silly child, that it is you who is unclear on the concept. but i shall not give up, for i possess a gentle soul and the heart of a Saint.

or the soul of a Saint and the heart of a Rotarian.

or the soul of a Rotarian and the heart of a Jew For Jesus.

something like that...it's not as important, as long as i don't give up.

and i shall not.

most sincerely,

GodBuilt

I installed a lot of F32T8 fixtures in my basement (24 in total) and have also had a lot of failures. The cheap ballasts used in these (Home Depot) fixtures have been the culprit.

Are you quite certain the tubes themselves are going bad?

Both of you are a disgrace to the amateur radio community. In my 40 plus years of ham radio involvement, I have never, ever, once seen such a disgusting display of bad judgment. I will make every effort to notify the FCC of this public posting as a means to challenge your privilege of holding a government broadcasting license. This license is a privilege and not a right, and your activities debase this privilege and the entire amateur radio community.

Cut it out !!!!!

this stops anytime Steve robeson k4yz wants it to stop and not before it is the RIGHT of memeber of the public to defend themselves against libel indeed the courts over the years have tended to rule that because I can defend myself in this admittedly ineffective mannerI have no recourse against the people like k4yz an extra class ham and VE

I have not misquoted Robeson nor have I commited the other crimes he charges complain to the FCC all you like but the comission in unable to displine Robeson for his behavior on the USENET and therefore I conclude would be unable to displine ME for defending myself

To be a little clearer, Steve Robeson and Roger "Woger Wabbit" Wiseman (or his follower/frogger/disciple) have been frogging (never forging, quite, though if you're not familiar with Mark's posts, you may get the impression that it's always Mark, since he sometimes munges his email addy) Mark Morgan, for at least the past six months or so, due to his having come out as a bisexual (clearly a rather brave thing to do, given the rampant hysterical homo/biphobia in rec.radio.*, which is rife with real-life stalkers) and because he made a joke about beer enemas. In the reply to Dennis, that was Wabbit all the way (Mark doesn't call himself

"Morkie", or talk about licking excrement), whereas the one to which I'm now replying is the original.

"When I told Abbie Hoffman that he was the first one who made me laugh since Lenny Bruce died, Hoffman said, "Really? He was my god." The combination of satirical irreverence and sense of justice that Bruce and Hoffman shared was the real spirit behind the Yippies--a term I coined to describe a phenomenon that already existed: an organic coalition of stoned hippies and political activists who engaged in such actions as throwing money on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, then explaining to reporters the meaning of that symbolism. Folksinger Phil Ochs summed it up: "A demonstration should turn you on, not turn you off." So when journalists link the Yippies with misleading bedfellows, at best it's careless shorthand; at worst it's deliberate demonization. Osama bin Laden wanted an aircraft to crash into the Pentagon. Abbie Hoffman merely wanted to levitate it." -- Paul Krassner, http://tinyurl.com/ehu3v 2093. CW shines during Six Meter auroral opening...

Some were operating SSB today but much of the 6m auroral activity brought on by today's massive solar flare, was conducted using CW. Some SSB signals were so severely distorted by aurora that callsigns could not be copied. It was much easier to complete a QSO using CW.

The auroral activity is still going on as this is written at 0307Z.

What kind of stupid dickhead (excuse the language, people like this make me angry) is wondering whether gays would want children. I myself am bisexual, and I want children. In fact, I have a lovely child who has my face and my wife's body. It's apart of evolution. Are you the dickhead in question is most likely

AB8MQ
http://www.qrz.com/detail/AB8MQ

or even more likely K4YZ

http://www.qrz.com/detail/K4YZ

the latter has been enagage for the past 8 years in stalking and threatening ME Mark Morgan Robeson, K4YZ has also otried to oblackmail over my sexual orientation, and then grew enraged when in resp[nse I outed myself as bisexaul in one of the radio NG you have been is the poster (who trying to forge an ID of mine) stupid? I don't know I do know he is apthological hatred of Bisexuals insisting mywife s male and that I am must a child molestors in not getting support in the NG I have been posting he trolls in various gruops to hook a

Well, for quite a while, it's been about a bunch of repressed homosexuals loudly attempting to convince all of usenet that they're NOT GAY, no, not them, despite no one having made any such accusations in their general directions before they got hysterical about the issue.
It just /started/ with Steve's vendetta against you...Mind you, I rather suspect that they've been shouting for even longer than the period since you and Steve first started going toe-to-toe, too. You've merely been the focus of their insane hatred because you're out.

What's even more amaZing is how so many of them can find the "Transmit" button despite having the IQ of a CB channel.

N.B.: Pleace to understand I'm not talking about the OTR force, here, who have an average IQ of 104.
Mommy's-basement DXers and CB-chasers have IQ's lower than lawyers, who average 97.

(see thread "No More Element 1")

The test may be dead, but the mode lives on.

Note that the link takes you to an announcement, but not the actual R&O. And while the R&O is dated today, it doesn't say when the change is effective.

Skilled at what? I am skilled at PSK31, MFSK, SSTV, DigitalTV, Packet, APRS, RTTY, Throb, Olivia, Domino, and even CW. So if an operator is skilled in most modes, then they are a skilled operator. You don't have to be skilled in all modes to be a skilled operator.

No, I am not. If such a person even exists, he's part of the F*CK sex cult out in kinky California. I'm a member of the Baptist church in Clearwater, Florida. I am good and Godly. Mr. Tucker is a gayo drag

Look at the .pdf file again. I missed it the first time. It is in very small print between the bars at the start of the note. It is an announcement and will be effective when the FCC releases the whole text (whatever and whenever that is).

Hopefully.

Actually it should come as no surprise. Things have been heading that way for a long time. Frankly, I'm surprised it has taken so long, considering that FCC could have done the same thing more than 3 years ago.

btw, I'm still keeping the "ARS License Numbers" thread going. It will be interesting to see how the number of current US licenses held by individuals changes after the new rules go into effect.

The public announcement doesn't say when the new rules will go into effect, though.

Mr. SC... I agree with your premise that losing the code requirement will operate to the detriment of ham radio in the long term...
I do not agree with your premise that continuous spamming of multiple groups with garbage postings did anything except make you feel

Now that Morse Code must compete in a free market, it is up to the enthusiasts to promote the mode. Many of your arguments in favor of Morse Code were legitimate for the promotion of the mode, but not for the retention of a stand-alone Pass/Fail Exam which denies access to the MF/HF privileges to many. The FCC finally ruled on it, without all the usual fanfare, comment period, and at least on the sidelines, lots of argument and name calling.

So, its time to go forth and multiply. The converts you get will do so for the love of the mode, not because the government made them do it to gain more voice priveleges.

Best of Luck.

Only if moderation is used in moderation have I ever seen it to be successful, else the newsgroup goes the way of CW and only a few devotees participate. However, it just might be worth it to be rid of the "gay agenda" who plague usenet these days.

VE's will now be testing applicants for their ability to program their cell phone interface to the car communication system, in order to assure proper data transfer between amprnet and arpanet using AX.25B protocols in a TCP/IP environment.

Element 1 hasn't been retired, it has been revised: it will now consist of a test to identify buzzwords with 70% accuracy.

I think it is reasonable to say that ham radio was already destroyed because it has not kept up with change. Eliminating the CW tests will helbring it back from possible extinction.

Who cares it we get lazy people into the hobby? At least we get some Ham Radio did not die today!

Isn't it funny that those who wanted code removed from the license requirements are all happy and those who did not want the change are all furious.

It kind of reminds me of the Rodney King trial and subsequent riots in LA a few years back. The jury who sat through many hours of testimony and heard all sides made a decision. A bunch of hot heads that only knew what they saw in a few minutes of TV coverage tore up the city and assaulted innocent people. What kind of intelligence is that? What good did it do?

The FCC proposed this action years ago in a NPRM after a change in international agreements occured. They received comments from both sides, followed by reply comments. They even extended the time for comments. The comment period has of course been closed for some time now. Yet, people keep writing about it in this group where it just won't do any good. The FCC does not read this group. Those who do may have made comments previously to the FCC in the proper from during the NPRM reply periods. Those comments were every one considered.

The bottom line is that the folks that count considered the comments from both sides and have made a decision. That is the way it will be.

The guys who enjoy CW will continue to use CW. Those that don't won't. Clubs can still teach CW and anyone who wants to use it can enjoy it like many of us do.

Please note this is an on topic post in only one newsgroup.

I'm sick and tired of seeing this debated all over the internet in inappropriate places. If you believe in a process that is open and both sides have an opportunity to be heard, the side that takes the loss has to get over it and move on.

Personally, I wish they had adopted the ARRL and FISTS proposals to at least retain CW as a requirement for the Extra Class license, but they didn't.

I wonder if the folks guilty of all the obscenities and off-topic cross postings are better amateur radio citizens than they are internet citizens. If they're not perhaps being upset with the rule change and selling their radio gear would be better for the amateur radio service. Them staying in the amateur service might be worse than the new no code hams that might be coming.

Extra Class that operates almost exclusively CW . . .

But that's the whole idea ... to stymie uncensored communications between rational adults.

That's why with every FCC ruling, the joys of scanning are effectively reduced in favor of it.

Awww, c'mon Slow!

To use the vernacular of the left, "It was the Exam, stupid." The mode hasn't changed... hell, it hasn't changed since the 1840's! What needs to change is your attitude about how to entice folks into the Morse Code fold. Since the government stick is gone, you'll have to sell Morse Code on its merits. And here's one last hint, you'll attract more folks if you use sugar. Good Luck.

Perhaps now we can discuss N2EY's proposal for a No-Test service. I'm sure he's eager to roll that one out again.

The "Gay Agenda" is Steven J. Robeson/K4YZ/K4CAP/Tennessee Nurse who mines the internet and brings back to this amateur newsgroup things which have no place here.

There was never any such proposal. You are mistaken, in error, and just plain wrong.

indeed testing is dead (or maybe on life support for 30 days) as to long live Morse (I use cw and look forward to seeing saome ham in HELL myself

but the conection of this petion to code testing is clear the ARRL obviously hoped to delay the end of the Onibus order to delay the issuance of the order

it dailed abut they will say to members well at least we tried

That has always been the case. For at least 50 years, hams have not been required to use Morse Code on the air, only to learn enough of it to pass the tests.

That test will be gone when the R&O takes effect.

In your opinion. Those who made the arguments thought they were legitimate.

As for "many", there are currently (Dec. 15) 656,264 individuals with current, valid FCC amateur radio licenses. It will be interesting to see if that number increases, and by how much, over the next several years.

> The FCC finally ruled on it, without all

Y'know, Brian, I'm convinced that you either have a sensory/cognition problem, or deliberately post inaccurate information as a way of getting attention.

The restructuring of 2000 eliminated all but the 5 wpm code test, because FCC said it was still needed to satisfy the ITU treaty - and for no other reason.

In 2003, the treaty changed to eliminate that requirement.

FCC got no less than 18 proposals addressing the Morse Code test and other license issues. They all got RM numbers and all got comments, reply comments, etc.

Last year (2005), FCC replied to all those proposals and put out an NPRM that proposed eliminating Element 1. It drew thousands of comments, reply comments, etc.

FCC went through all the SOP steps for rules changes. Yesterday's announcement is just the FCC's announcement of their decision.

Kinda puts the lie to "without all the usual fanfare, comment period" and such.

Didn't you know all that?

> So, its time to go forth and multiply. The converts you get will do so > for the love of the mode, not because the government made them do it to

We will see how many new hams we actually get - and what they are like.

I am actually surprised to find out it was/is Vince. He's an O.K. guy, puts in volunteer time and is very knowledgeable. While I firmly believe this alter personality detracted from Amateur radio (Slow Code), Vince has done other things to advance it.

Although I know Vince is very pro Morse code, I am having trouble believing it was him (being Mr. Slow Code)

If it was/is him, turning in his license would only be a detriment to the community IMHO.

Satan wrote thru his servant Bill Baker:

> Max hates it when you figure out his little game.

Max isn't playing games any more. When he was they were gayo sex and cross-dressing games. I thought you approved of those. He loves Jesus now. Soon he'll be sharing the gospel with you. He speaks in tongues and can elucidate the Aramaic words of Our Lord. I can't wait to hear him blast fornication. That covers ALL forms of homosexuality.

> Sorry, I'd rather support our country instead.

President Bush was fairly elected to serve our country. That's exactly what he's doing...by stomping Arab ass over in Iraq...pardon my French. I hope he starts bombing Iran before they get a hold of the bomb and start using it against the Jews. That would be Armageddon right there.

> ...the latest in a long line of Max's characters.

I'm not one of Max's "characters." Max is one of our church's latest members. You're just mad because he left the Satanic sex church and revoked your membership before he found Jesus.

> We know. He did it the very first day you posted here.

No. He joined only a few weeks ago. Have you been smoking pot again? Are you a big fan of Jay Bakker? His new show is supposed to take up homosexuality next week. Apparently he's all for it. He'll do anything for money. His mother is going to turn on the tears again just for him. There has to be a good reason God afflicted her as much as He has. I think it's because she's so nice to the gayos. SICK!!!

Of course not. How many times in the past have various changes in the ARS been proclaimed as the death of ham radio? Such proclamations were wrong in each and every case.

I'd expected nothing less. That's just human nature.

It's called mob mentality, and of course, it did not good at all.

Yep.

Just as it's about time the code test went away (personally, I thought it was time for that 30 years ago), it's also about time people started adhering to Usenet etiquette. This debate, and the crap it spawned, spilled over into several other newsgroups where it had nothing to do with the topics of those groups. I do hope that it will now finally stop.

But, I'm not holding my breath.

I agree...but like I said, I'm not holding my breath. There are apparently some rather unstable individuals on both sides of this issue, and even though it's now a non-issue, I doubt some of them will let it die the death it deserves.

Interesting. I never thought of it this way before, but maybe that's the explanation for the irrational behavior some people on Usenet have exhibited during this whole process. Unable to release their frustrations on the air because of the possibility of having their licenses designated for cancellation (or because they don't even have licenses), some people took to expressing themselves on Usenet, which is already so liberally populated with kooks that a few dozen more were hardly noticed.

As I'm sure many of us are already aware, the procedure with these things is that the rule changes take effect 30 days after they have been publisheds in the Federal Register. Once the R&O shows up in the Federal Register, the 30-day countdown begins.

On Day 31, presumably, those who hold a Technician Class license without Element 1 credit gain some operating privileges on HF, and the rest of us have the opportunity to add some new callsigns to our logs.

they granted the ARRLs petion in the same Prder and that ptetion was to have inmedate effect as I read and used the same lang in combining the tech and pluses, and different lang abit for the general extra license change but for techs the words were "Today actions..." instaed of other lang

True, the FCC does have the power to order the changes to become effective upon release.

Whether or not this is the case with respect to the actions contained in the public notice was not made clear in the public notice.

Therefore, I suspect Bill Cross is going to find a significant number of new e-mails and his phone ringing off the hook when he arrives for work on Monday morning.

So, progress is defined as something which has less qualifications than it used to or something which isn't quite as good as it used to be?

It might be even more of a shock for those us who aren't CBers, who have been radio amateurs for any length of time and who are of any age.

104 posts, today, basicaly calling me a fraud becuase steve typoed badly and published a claim that I have eaten his shit of another mans genitals it is incredable that he keeps one digging in deeper and deepr

on this subject

I have never met Robeson there fore unles he is contending that some male lover of his got the shit and flew here for oral sex without ever bathing it is quite impoosible for Robeson mistaken claims which he also insists are true, as inists despite evedence that I am convicted sex offender tax cheat cheat welfare fraud and rapist

indeed I am becoming concerned that he may indeed snap and I reffering anyone reading my blog as part of investagating my possible death I refer you esp to RRAP and to this older entry in my blog http://kb9rqz.blogspot.com/2006/05/in-unlikely-event-of-my-death.html

Wow, read through some of your blog and other pages your blog refers to.
You are quite the lighting rod. You should not be surprised to receive much attention any many areas.

Best of luck to you.

2256. End of an era: FCC announces end to CW testing

End of an Era: FCC to Drop Morse Testing for All Amateur License Classes
NEWINGTON, CT, Dec 15, 2006 -- In an historic move, the FCC has acted to drop the Morse code requirement for all Amateur Radio license classes. The Commission today adopted, but hasn't yet released, the long-awaited Report and Order (R&O) in WT Docket 05-235, the "Morse code" proceeding. Also today, the FCC adopted an Order on Reconsideration in WT Docket 04-140 -- the "omnibus" proceeding -- modifying the Amateur Radio rules in response to an ARRL request to accommodate automatically controlled narrowband digital stations on 80 meters in the wake of rule changes that became effective today at 12:01 AM Eastern Time. The Commission said it will designate the 3585 to 3600 kHz frequency segment for such operations, although the segment will remain available for CW, RTTY and data as it has been. In a break from what's been the usual practice in Amateur Radio proceedings, the FCC only issued a public notice at or about the close of business today and not the actual Report & Order, so some details -- including the effective dates of the two orders -- remain uncertain. Currently, Amateur Radio applicants for General and higher class licenses have to pass a 5 WPM Morse code test to operate on HF. Today's R&O will eliminate that requirement all around.

"This change eliminates an unnecessary regulatory burden that may discourage current Amateur Radio operators from advancing their skills and participating more fully in the benefits of Amateur Radio," the FCC said. The ARRL had asked the FCC to retain the 5 WPM for Amateur Extra class applicants only. The FCC proposed earlier to drop the requirement across the board, however, and it held to that decision in today's R&O.

Perhaps more important, the FCC's action in WT Docket 05-235 appears to put all Technician licensees on an equal footing: Once the R&O goes into effect, holders of Technician class licenses will have equivalent HF privileges, whether or not they've passed the 5 WPM Element 1 Morse examination. The FCC said the R&O in the Morse code docket would eliminate a disparity in the operating privileges for the Technician and Technician Plus class licensees -- something the ARRL also has asked the Commission to correct following the release of its July 2005 Notice of Proposed Rule Making (NPRM) in WT Docket 05-235.

"With today's elimination of the Morse code exam requirements, the FCC concluded that the disparity between the operating privileges of Technician class licensees and Technician Plus class licensees should not be retained," the FCC said in its public notice. "Therefore, the FCC, in today's action, afforded Technician and Technician Plus licensees identical operating privileges."

Technician licensees without Element 1 credit (ie, Tech Plus licensees) currently have operating privileges on all amateur frequencies above 30 MHz. Tech Pluses or Technicians with Element 1 credit have limited HF privileges on 80, 40, 15 and 10 meters. Under the Part 97 rules the Commission proposed last year in its NPRM in WT Docket 05-235, current Technicians lacking Morse credit after the new rules went into effect would have had to upgrade to General to earn any HF privileges.

The wholesale elimination of a Morse code requirement for all license classes ends a longstanding national and international regulatory tradition in the requirements to gain access to Amateur Radio frequencies below 30 MHz. The first no-code license in the US was the Technician ticket, instituted in 1991. The question of whether or not to drop the Morse requirement altogether has been the subject of often-heated debate over the past several years, but the handwriting has been on the wall -- especially since the FCC instituted an across-the-board 5 WPM Morse requirement effective April 15, 2000, in the most-recent major Amateur Radio licensing restructuring (WT Docket 98-143).

The FCC said today's R&O in WT Docket 05-235 comports with revisions to the international Radio Regulations resulting from the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) World Radiocommunication Conference 2003 (WRC-03). At that gathering, delegates agreed to authorize each country to determine whether or not to require that applicants demonstrate Morse code proficiency in order to qualify for an Amateur Radio license with privileges on frequencies below 30 MHz.

The list of countries dropping the Morse requirement has been growing steadily since WRC-03. A number of countries, including Canada, the UK and several European nations, now no longer require applicants for an Amateur Radio license to pass a Morse code test to gain HF operating privileges. Following WRC-03, the FCC received several petitions for rule making asking it to eliminate the Morse requirement in the US.

Typically, the effective date of an FCC Order is 30 days after it appears in the Federal Register. If that's the case, the Morse requirement and the revised 80-meter segment for automatically controlled digital stations would likely not go into effect until late January or early February 2007. That's not clear from the public notice, however. The FCC can order its decision effective upon release.

The ARRL will provide any additional information on these important Part 97 rule revisions as it becomes available.

Back in the days, when men were men . . .

the future of Ham radio

sadly in America it is acceptable to blame the target of the attack

A little bit of a different perspective if I may.

I am quite hard of hearing. Tinnitus is the main problem. Imagine trying to copy code with 20 over 9 noise. Haven't experienced silence since I was 18 y.o. Plus I have several frequency holes in my hearing, estimated at over 100 db deep.

I studied Morse code for over 6 months, several hours a day. All that to get to around 7wpm, a level at which a number of code proficient hams won't even bother to communicate with me.

Flunked Element 1 the first time, a bit of humiliation for a person who is used to reading something once, then aceing the test.

After passing, I try a bit of CW Morse from time to time, but mostly do things like PSK and RTTY, which are visual in nature. I can also contest on SSB and PSK/RTTY, and am very active in Amateur radio, including public service, and am the chairman of the premier State QSO party in the country.
Not too bad for a person who could barely pass the Morse code test - according to some, the litmus test of worthyness. Yeah, I'm a nickle extra.
Big deal. I only passed 5 wpm, and you're a jerk.
(those who would determine worthyness in relation to the speed at which they can swipe a paddle)

I am the poster child for elimination of the Morse code proficiency requirement.

But!

When I first got involved in Ham Radio in 1999, a lot of people told me that I should hold off on the upgrade, because Morse code proficiency was going to go away "soon".

I didn't listen to them, and I'm glad, because all I would have done is cheated myself out of 8 maybe 9 years of the best hobby I've ever found. It was worth all the trouble and more.

So if you have waited for the Morse code testing to go away to upgrade, then congratulations, and welcome to the fraternity, but please accept my sympathy for cheating yourself out of a few years of this incredible hobby.

Finally, if KB7ADL is indeed "Slow Code", I would suggest that you look at your own behavior and decide if it is consistent with the type of people who are in amateur radio who know Morse code well. However nothing is entirely good or bad. The "Slow Code" crosspostings finally got me off the stick to get a newsreader that could filter out the Morse code drivel and the bizzare crosspostings from people with serious issues. Thank you!

Morse code testing is dead. Long live Morse CW!

Only past winners of Kook of the Month are eligible for KOTY, unfortunately. So far, no such individual as you mention has ever won KOTM, and in fact, I don't think any RRCB/RRAP regs have yet displayed a sufficiently entertaining (or frothy) degree of k00kiness as to come close to winning that award.

Hey John,

I'm seriously converted to Xnews! You might want to give it a try. It even converted this group to hetero (at least I didn't have to see it) ;^) They can keep changin their names, but Xnews makes pretty short work of 'em.

Dave,

Please don't confuse me with our (former member of) Mensa friend! btw,
I passed 13 wpm decades ago, when the Morse test was administered by the FCC. That was when you had to be letter-for-letter perfect one minute straight, of random 5-letter code groups... and (for the majority of us) it was no big strain. Since then, the test has been slowed-down and dumbed-down considerably.

Fortunately, for those unable/unwilling to put a modicum of effort into achieving a paltry 5 wpm proficiency, the FCC appears to have decided to eliminate Element 1 entirely.
Unfortunately, for those of us who thought it was no big deal to attain 13 wpm (and even 5 wpm) proficiency, the recently expanded HF fone bands will now be clogged with lids.

Moaning Mark will soon be moaning in ecstacy over the elimination of CW as a licensing requirement, if he is not already.
I welcome the new users to the HF frequencies providing they comport themselves well. The first time I hear an idiot no-coder using an echo box or telling someone, "ten-roger", I am going to speak up.
As for my previous offer to meet Mork on 17 meters? Consider it rescinded.

There is another plus to this new rule change in that this will give Woger that many more stations to jam. Tune up your rigs, Wabbit. There is a whole new flock of newbies in the wings who are ripe and ready for your brand of harrassment.

and here is another place you show true colors as just a general zenophobe. you like harrassment and encourage it on air and on USENET this fact about you alone makes ME the better ham
Mark, try as you may to delude yourself, you will never be a "better" ham than anybody. You punce, I use CW when the mood strikes my fancy.

You seem to have an exaggerated opinion of yourself, one not shared by any others on these groups. What the heck. You, like Roger, are welcome to your delusions of grandeur.

Now sally forth, Morkie, and continue to crap on each and every post made herein whether you were invited or not.

Of Course I am better ham than you You punce i don't

I also use CW when it strikes my fancy and Make contacts with it too of Course I know what CW IS and you don't anymore than you are able to post according to USENET protocols

Note that the campaigning k00k you see frogging Mark "an_old_friend" Morgan is known as "Wabbit" (due to the way he takes after Roger "Woger" Wiseman (though he may in fact be the real deal, but it makes no difference)). If he gets frothy enough, he may be put up for Kook of the Month, but so far, he's practically as boring as Mark "Golden Killfile for July/August 2006" Morgan himself. In the past few months, he's taken to x-poasting various threads he finds in AUK into his home group, rec.radio.amateur.policy, in hopes of driving Mark off usenet (Wabbit is virulently homo- and biphobic, along with most RRAP'ers, and Mark is bisexual -- someone once tried to blackmail him, but Mark wouldn't be blackmailed, and came out), though that flamewar has been getting x-poasted into AUK since at least July. Since using AUK as a flamewar weapon is strictly against the FAQ, that particular tactic backfired, eventually, when Wabbit won the Joseph "GoatBlower" Bartlo Pathetic Anal Pineapple on the October ballot.

Also, "Gav" is a reference to Mark's wife.

Mayhaps you should read what the Muslims have to say.

Read of their barbaric practices toward their women.

F*&$ man, you are too funny! I've been sitting here laughing my ass off in the past who knows how long reading your responses!
I will add this statement to this message as well if you don't mind!
You see, I could care less about one's creed-race, belief, or sexual preference for that matter. But this I.B.ZED character has been boiling my blood for so long that I figured that I would exercise my constitutional right as A Canadian citizen to voice my opinion here.
You see, sticks and stones may break my bone but I'm a paraplegic!

Would anyone happen to have the manual for a radio shack htx-212 2 meter rig in either pdf format or in .txt? I am blind, and need to try to figure out how to set the pl tones on this rig. If you have one, or can point me to a web site, that would be great. Just e-mail to this address. Dana@panix.com Tnx.

There's no stalking here, fatboy.

You come here voluntarily. Any suggestion otherwise is, (as if we should expect something else?) a lie from you.

Stupid, stupid stupid, Morkie...That's all I can say about YOUR interpretation of that paragraph.

YOU have re-quoted it over 2,500 times now and I only posted it once...Yet YOU still think it somehow has words in it that clearly are not there.

Stupid, stupid stupid, Morkie...That's all I can say about YOUR
interpretation of that paragraph.

YOU have re-quoted it over 2,500 times now and I only posted it once...Yet YOU still think it somehow has words in it that clearly are not there.

I am.

YOU keep claiming that I suggest that you consume MY excrement, or
that I am claiming that other men consume my excrement.

That's a lie.

There's no stalking here, fatboy.

You come here voluntarily. Any suggestion otherwise is, (as if we should expect something else?) a lie from you.

The torrent of "filth and lies" comes from Chassell, Michigan,
Morkie.

No, you don't.

Any quick perusal of YOUR posts shows that you post everyday,
around the clock.

My posts come on "off" days and when there's nothing on the late movie.

You're my cheap, late night entertainment.

Stupid, stupid stupid, Morkie...That's all I can say about YOUR
interpretation of that paragraph.

YOU have re-quoted it over 2,500 times now and I only posted it once...Yet YOU still think it somehow has words in it that clearly are not there.

I am.

YOU keep claiming that I suggest that you consume MY excrement, or
that I am claiming that other men consume my excrement.

That's a lie.

I HAVE a life...That's why I don't pound EVERY post of yours with foul language and deceitful misquotes on a daily basis like you do mine.

> the truth I trick you in 1998 when you threnting to MURDER me

The truth is you've been lying since 1998 on every subjected you've engaged in RRAP. The truth is your tales are so transparent that you couldn't hold water with them.

> stop this whining and face facts you are the one that is sick with

You are the one with an "obesstion" for excrement, fatboy....That's why you continually re-post that subject line and then use that word blatantly in most of your posts.

Stop whining. Stop being a dork that acts lie Mork. And WHAT is
"cyvervandalism"..??

Someone vandalizd a cyver? What's a cyver and HOW did it get vandalized...?!?!

Stupid, stupid stupid, Morkie...That's all I can say about YOUR
interpretation of that paragraph.

YOU have re-quoted it over 2,500 times now and I only posted it once...Yet YOU still think it somehow has words in it that clearly are
not there.

Like I said, Morkie...You out-post me 15:1. Daily.

There's no vandalism. The filth and profanity are YOURS and YOURS

alone.

> stop lying syaing I eat your ####

Stop claiming you have three college degrees and then clearly demonstrating that you're incompetent in basic English comprehension.

I never said you consume ANYONE'S excrement except YOUR OWN,
Morkie!

An YOU have been providing the proof everytime you cite that
quote!

> stop lying about being miiss quoted

I am being misquoted.

YOU keep claiming that I suggest that you consume MY excrement, or
that I am claiming that other men consume my excrement.

That's a lie.

I am claiming YOU consume your OWN!

And again...YOU prove it!

The truth is you've been lying since 1998 on every subjected you've engaged in RRAP. The truth is your tales are so transparent that you couldn't hold water with them.

You are the one with an "obesstion" for excrement,
fatboy....That's why you continually re-post that subject line and then use that word blatantly in most of your posts.

Stop whining. Stop being a dork that acts lie Mork. And WHAT is
"cyvervandalism"..??

Someone vandalizd a cyver? What's a cyver and HOW did it get vandalized...?!?!

There's no stalking here, fatboy.

You come here voluntarily. Any suggestion otherwise is, (as if we should expect something else?) a lie from you.

The torrent of "filth and lies" comes from Chassell, Michigan,
Morkie.

No, you don't.

Any quick perusal of YOUR posts shows that you post everyday,
around the clock.

My posts come on "off" days and when there's nothing on the late
movie.

You're my cheap, late night entertainment.

> I may have steamrolled over something other than steve diatribe if I

No you're not.

Everyone in this forum, your "friends" included, have told you your crap isn't appreciated here, yet you outpost everyone here, myself included, 15:1.

> this message will be sent multitime in hope in may survive

And there's my point. You're bound and determined to frag the NG
no matter what. You're announcing your intention to SPAM the NG.

Stupid, stupid stupid, Morkie...That's all I can say about YOUR
interpretation of that paragraph.

YOU have re-quoted it over 2,500 times now and I only posted it once...Yet YOU still think it somehow has words in it that clearly are
not there.

Stop claiming you have three college degrees and then clearly demonstrating that you're incompetent in basic English comprehension.

I never said you consume ANYONE'S excrement except YOUR OWN,
Morkie!

An YOU have been providing the proof everytime you cite that quote!

I am being misquoted.

YOU keep claiming that I suggest that you consume MY excrement, or
that I am claiming that other men consume my excrement.

That's a lie.

I am claiming YOU consume your OWN!

And again...YOU prove it!

The truth is you've been lying since 1998 on every subjected you've engaged in RRAP. The truth is your tales are so transparent that you couldn't hold water with them.

There's no stalking here, fatboy.

You come here voluntarily. Any suggestion otherwise is, (as if we should expect something else?) a lie from you.

The torrent of "filth and lies" comes from Chassell, Michigan,
Morkie.

No, you don't.

Any quick perusal of YOUR posts shows that you post everyday,
around the clock.

My posts come on "off" days and when there's nothing on the late
movie.

You're my cheap, late night entertainment.

No you're not.

Everyone in this forum, your "friends" included, have told you your crap isn't appreciated here, yet you outpost everyone here, myself

included, 15:1.

Stupid, stupid stupid, Morkie...That's all I can say about YOUR
interpretation of that paragraph.

YOU have re-quoted it over 2,500 times now and I only posted it once...Yet YOU still think it somehow has words in it that clearly are
not there.

Stop claiming you have three college degrees and then clearly demonstrating that you're incompetent in basic English comprehension.

I never said you consume ANYONE'S excrement except YOUR OWN,
Morkie!

An YOU have been providing the proof everytime you cite that quote!

I am being misquoted.

YOU keep claiming that I suggest that you consume MY excrement, or
that I am claiming that other men consume my excrement.

That's a lie.

I am claiming YOU consume your OWN!

And again...YOU prove it!

The truth is you've been lying since 1998 on every subjected you've engaged in RRAP. The truth is your tales are so transparent that you couldn't hold water with them.

There's no stalking here, fatboy.

You come here voluntarily. Any suggestion otherwise is, (as if we should expect something else?) a lie from you.

> as I said more than a year ago I would not stand for the constant

The torrent of "filth and lies" comes from Chassell, Michigan, Morkie.

> whe n I saw 100 plus posts on this subject from obviously I could > answer them indivualy, unlike Robeson I have life

No, you don't.

Any quick perusal of YOUR posts shows that you post everyday,
around the clock.

My posts come on "off" days and when there's nothing on the late
movie.

You're my cheap, late night entertainment.

> I may have steamrolled over something other than steve diatribe if I > steamrooled over you missing your content for this I am sorry

No you're not.

Everyone in this forum, your "friends" included, have told you
your crap isn't appreciated here, yet you outpost everyone here, myself

included, 15:1.

> this message will be sent multitime in hope in may survive

And there's my point. You're bound and determined to frag the NG
no matter what. You're announcing your intention to SPAM the NG.

> following is at this point is the cut and paste at it full measure bit > got afdded as I noted charged made again that I wished to adress

In other words, you STILL haven't gotten it through your numb skull that you're making a fool out of yourself, to wit:

> Morkie, I will conceed that you know two things that I will never > know...What it's like to lick my excrement off of another man's

Stupid, stupid stupid, Morkie...That's all I can say about YOUR
interpretation of that paragraph.

YOU have re-quoted it over 2,500 times now and I only posted it once...Yet YOU still think it somehow has words in it that clearly are
not there.

> stop the lying stop the vandalism and stop the bull at this point my > server say you have post 8o plus itme titled with #### or a synoym in > the title

Like I said, Morkie...You out-post me 15:1. Daily.

There's no vandalism. The filth and profanity are YOURS and YOURS

alone.

> stop lying syaing I eat your ####

Stop claiming you have three college degrees and then clearly
demonstrating that you're incompetent in basic English comprehension.

I never said you consume ANYONE'S excrement except YOUR OWN,
Morkie!

An YOU have been providing the proof everytime you cite that
quote!

> stop lying about being miiss quoted

I am being misquoted.

YOU keep claiming that I suggest that you consume MY excrement, or
that I am claiming that other men consume my excrement.

That's a lie.

I am claiming YOU consume your OWN!

And again...YOU prove it!

> get a life and get help since you are clearly obessed with staking a > man sexualy

I HAVE a life...That's why I don't pound EVERY post of yours with foul language and deceitful misquotes on a daily basis like you do mine.

> the truth I trick you in 1998 when you threnting to MURDER me

The truth is you've been lying since 1998 on every subjected you've engaged in RRAP. The truth is your tales are so transparent that you couldn't hold water with them.

> stop this whining and face facts you are the one that is sick with > your obesstion for ####

You are the one with an "obesstion" for excrement, fatboy....That's why you continually re-post that subject line and then use that word blatantly in most of your posts.

> the ruth is you are truly MAD robeson get help

Nope.

> and please stop the lie I have seen that you are doing ANYTHING for my > benifit

I am. I am trying to make you see what an idiot and a fool you make out of yourself in public. These "apology" posts of yours are classic.

> and stop lying about the ToS of Google they expressly prohibit your > cyvervandalism

Stop whining. Stop being a dork that acts lie Mork. And WHAT is
"cyvervandalism"..??

Someone vandalizd a cyver? What's a cyver and HOW did it get vandalized...?!?!

> and stop lying about my Military service I have my DD 214 as I guess > you do likely yours list section 8 as reason for discharge

What military service?

The only thing YOU "serviced" in the military were some drunk soldiers via a knothole in the latrine.

Again with the "silence", Morkie...?!?!

You keep saying "get a life", yet you can't stand the fact that everyone else around you HAS a life...

In my case, the "life" not only includes family (with a mate of the opposite sex, unlike yourself), volunteer activities, Amateur Radio, and a job. (A "job"...also called "employment", is an exchange of labor for money...Not sitting around playing on the Internet waiting for the check to arrive form the State every month such as you do...)

> but as can be plainly seen he has not he is still drunk with the mad

Oh, MORKIE.. ! ! ! ! I DO NOT HATE YOU ! ! !

How could I hate anyone that keeps me rolling on the floor in morbid laughter...?!?!?

And that '...for being smarter than he ' line...?!?!? KILLER!

> the origins of this for those jioing the #### storm...(SNIP)

" #### storm " must be one of those "smarter people" phrases...You know...the ones that people who can't use real words use in order to try and make a point with.

> (UNSNIP)...in progress is bascialy this after sparing with steve...(SNIP)

"sparing" with me...?!?!

Morkie, you can't spell "sparring", let alone effectively do it.

> in RRAP years he treatened to > murder and tried to balck mail with evidence he and one of his freinds > had found out about me being bisexaul instaed of hiding I outed myself

No, you didn't "out" yourself, Morkie.

Steve Adell found and quoted your solicitation for deviant sex.
You had nothing to do in the "outing" process except to stand there with egg on your face making silly excuses until you just couldn't make them anymore.

> indeed his whole existance on RRAP has been dreging across the USENET

Nope.

> he has typed word claiming to support accodation in Code testing but "accodation", Morkie..?!?!

Another one of those "smarter than you" words...?!?!

In any case, your lie of my having "baosted" of "dening" a code waiver on my own authority is just that...A lie.

> he makes jokes about rape and child molesting and hassrasses the > disableity un mercifully

Rape and child molesting are NOT funny...However YOU consider them sporting events.

> indeed amoug his sins was harrasing because I sought a accomdated code > test as was my right

No...

I've not harrassed you for seeking a code waiver.

First of all, you were never qualified for a code waiver. Code waivers ONLY APPLIED to those who had already passed a 5WPM code test and were claiming they couldn't do any better due to neurological deficits.

Having never passed the 5WPM test, you were not eligible.

Secondly, YOU are the one who "baosted" about having tried to get an ALLERGIST to write your waiver for you when an otolarynologist or neurologist was what you needed.

Of course you WOULDN'T go to a physician in one of those disciplines because THEY would know your attempts were BOGUS.

Bravo for your "allergist" that he said no...The resulting scolding he may have gotten from the FCC might have been very embarrassing.

> I apologize for the unpleasent reading folks

No you don't. Otherwise you wouldn't do it and do it as prolifically as you do it.

> it is up to robeson

No it's not. I have NO SAY in YOUR posting habits or behaviour, as bizarre as they are.

> I will be here till I can sign KB9RQZ/AE

> stve does not that and tries by flooding th e NG to turn the ire of folks against Me

Whatever "ire" of other folks that get's directed towards you is a direct consequence of YOUR behaviour, fatboy. No one elses.

(Gee..WHO is it that is always accusing someone of "blaming" others for things, MORKIE...?!?!)

You're both "disagreable" because neither one of you can tell a straight tale.

Oh, to be sure Brain is more flowery and and competent with the written word than you, but both of you love to tell it one way then do it another.

> 3 we are both good hams

Oh?

Brain's been busted on so many points of fact about both Amateur Radio and MARS that he looks like that famous picture of the Hindenberg as it falls on the mast at NAS Lakehurst. He's allegedged to have operated from DX locations but WITHOUT valid licensure and to this day can't provide a single bit of evidence of legitimacy of ANY of his "DX" operations.

YOUR only claim to actual operating activity has been a ficticious
"log" of "moonbunce" operations, not a single bit of which was even remotely true.

I'm no where near being Dr DX, however you can at least find me on the DXCC rolls.

Brain was "comenting" on my WHAT...?!?!

Brain didn't like what I said, fatboy, but he's not agreed with your interpretation of those words.

And again...unless he's a bigger idiot than I presume him to be, he won't unless he wants to appear as equally incompetent in the language.

Since when do Pagans celebrate Jewish holidays?

BTW...Do you know what Jewish theologians say about Paganism? And if you now purport to be Jewish, how does your Pagan practices stack up with that in-as-much as Adolf-You-Know-Who had some strong beliefs in that realm...?!?!

Xenophobe, Morkie. (Too bad mommie died not knowing how you blew the college money on gay bars and Olympia Gold)

You just LOVE trying to convince others what a great ham you are, don't you, Morkie?

A Legend In Your Own Mind.

You are the one who claimed to enjoy being raped, Marqueer.

BTW, what happened to your statement that if they drop the code you were out of here for good? Looks like you lied again!

Then why do you send your kiddie porn through the postal service, Markie?
